JUDGE CONSIDERS WRITE-IN VOTE

Vernon Housewives Block Street

Refuse to Eat Dust Of Detour

North Belle Vernon Burgess Leroy Jones said today that a group of housewives who blocked off a street leading into the borough were acting "within their legal rights."

"These women are preventing traffic from crossing over private property," Jones said. "They have obtained consent of the owner to act in his behalf."

The housewives, who live along Vine St., set up the blockade last night. They were out in force again today, stopping cars from reaching the new Express Highway via Vine St.

According to the women, they've complained for several years about the dusty condition of the street. But they "just couldn't take it any more" when motorists began using the street as a detour.

"The heavy trucks and buses stirred up so much dust that we decided to take matters into our own hands," said one of the protesting women.

Private Property

Traffic over Vine St. increased sharply this week when Main St in Belle Vernon was blocked off to permit removal of street car rails. Motorists were detoured over the Express Highway.

Since Vine St. is the first entrance into North Belle Vernon, most cars have been using that method of getting into town.

However, borough officials pointed out that Vine St. actually ends at the intersection of Hill St. From that point to the Express Highway — about 200 feet — the area is private property.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walkush, of 715 Hill St., own most of the area. However Mrs. Walkush said today that they are "neutral" in the dispute.

A few feet of the area is owned by Zeffiro Marini, of 619 Hill St. It is on this property that the housewives have set up their barricade.

According to the women, the dust is seriously affecting the health of their children. They claim that petitions to Borough Council for oil have gone unheeded in the past. A year ago, they bought oil and applied it at their own expense the women stated.

A spokesman for the borough agreed that the residents of Vine St. had petitioned for oil. However, he said Council has adopted a policy of not applying oil unless

Stirone Is Guilty; To Ask Retrial

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Nick Stirone, boss of heavy construction workers in the Pittsburgh district, has been found guilty of extorting $31,274 from a building contractor for labor peace.

A federal court jury deliberated less than five hours Wednesday before returning the verdict which carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Federal Judge John L. Miller withheld sentencing pending the usual motions for a new trial and a directed verdict of acquittal. Defense counsel Veto Rich indicated the motions would be filed within five days

Stirone sat motionless as a clerk read the decision marking him guilty of violating the Hobbs Anti-Racketeering Act, a federal law demanding stiff penalties for union leaders who use their office to force tribute.

Allenport Job

Stirone was accused of forcing William G. Rider to pay him 50 cents for every cubic yard of ready-mixed concrete moved to a construction job in Allenport, Pa Rider introduced 16 checks to support the charge, and showed statements detailing the amount of concrete covered by each check

The labor leader, president of the international Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union Loal 1058, maintained the money was payment for aiding Rider obtain the contract to supply the concrete.

The defense also argued the question was not one for the federal courts, since the Hobbs Act applies only to cases involving interstate commerce. Federal attorneys maintained the sand for the concrete came from West Virginia.

Miller, in a 68-minute charge, asked the jury to consider the interstate commerce question and to decide whether Rider made the payments because of fear.

James R. Hoffa

Hoffa Trying For Delay in Bribery Trial

WASHINGTON (UP)—Teamster Union Vice President James R Hoffa took to the U.S. Court of Appeals today his attempt to force a delay in his bribery trial already in progress in a lower court.

Hoffa's attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, said the appeals court would be asked to intervene with an order directing District Judge Burnita S. Matthews to postpone proceedings against the union official in her court.

Matthews denied Williams' motion for a delay Wednesday and Hoffa's trial opened as scheduled.

Williams was seeking a postponement on grounds that he had nothad time to adequately prepare Hoffa's defense and that Hoffa cannot presently get a fair trial here because of extensive publicity given to his arrest and the Senate investigation into Teamster Union corruption.

The publicity argument also was being used by the defense counsel for Hyman I. Fischbach, whois standing trial with Hoffa and also is seeking a delay.

Stieska on Stand In Attempt to Get Nomination

Judge Richard D. Laird of Westmoreland County today took under advisement the mixed-up write-in contest for the Republican mayoralty nomination in Monessen.

Judge Laird heard testimony on an appeal by John R. Stieska, Monessen druggist, from a ruling by the county commissioners that votes cast for him under various names cannot be cumulated.

Stieska, a Democrat, lost the Democratic nomination to Mayor Hugo J. Parente. Since there were no candidates on the Republican ticket, Stieska and Parente waged campaigns for write-in and sticker votes in that party.

According to the official tabulation by the commissioners, Parente was the winner, 70 to 58, counting only the votes cast under the full names of the Candidates.

But if the votes cast under all names are cumulated, Stieska would take the GOP nomination by something like 170 to 150.

Stieska took the witness stand at the hearing this morning Mayor Parente was in the courtroom but did not testify.

Lawyers State Cases

Attorney Daniel J. Snyder Jr., representing Stieska, told the court it would be unconstitutional to cumulate write-in votes where paper ballots are used and not to do so where voting machines are used, as they were in Monessen in the May 21 primary.

Attorney Bernard Shire, of Monessen, counsel for Parente, claimed that the laws governing the use of machines differ in this respect from those concerning paper ballots.

This was the position taken by Attorney P. K. Jones, county solicitor, in advising the commissioners to count only the votes cast under the full, proper names of the candidates.

Shire cited lower court decisions which held that write-ins could not be cumulated where voting machines are used. No appellate court has yet considered the question.

Attorney Paul K. McCormick, also representing Parente, tried to show that Republican voters who wrote just "Steiska" on the paper roll of the machine could have had some other person in mind than John R. Stieska.

Registrar Testifies

McCormick called as a witness Robert DiLotto, county voter registrar, who testified that four Stieskas are registered to vote in Monessen.

They are: John R. Steiska, the mayoralty candidate; his wife, June; Peter T. Stieska, the candidate's brother, and Dorothy S. Stieska, Peter's wife.

McCormick pointed out that Peter Stieska had run for public office in the past and that both John R. and June Stieska were candidates in the primary election. June Stieska was running for judge of election in the second precinct of the Fourth Ward.

McCormick told Judge Laird that all of these factors could be confusing to voters.

Snyder countered by saying that

Pin Removed From Throat

Martha Black, 13 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Black, of 1000 Optic St. is recovering in West Penn Hospital, Pittsburgh, after the removal of an open safety pin which she swallowed.

Martha told her parents she was picking her teeth with the open pin when she accidentally inhaled it. The accident happened at 3 p. m. and she was immediately rushed to the hospital by ambulance.

Upon arrival at the hospital many x-rays were taken and the object was located just below the esophagus.

Dr. Armand Kyllenon, who is on the staff at West Penn, removed the pin. Martha is in good condition after her ordeal and will remain in the hospital only three or four days.

More Roadblocks in Way of Legislators

HARRISBURG (UP) — Sheer weariness and legislative roadblocks flagged the General Assembly's attempt to wind up its 1957 session at an early hour today and the lawmakers postponed the final curtain for a few more hours.

The legislators surrendered to the clock and put off the windup after a near 15-hour session. Printing difficulties and a last-minute mixup in which Democrats claimed a $2,750,000 appropriation was inadvertently omitted from the General Appropriations Bill finally put an end to Wednesday's Senate session near 3 a.m. edt. The House quit about a half hour earlier after it was informed of the impossibility of completing the legislative work at the virtually around-the-clock session.

A final stumbling block was removed earlier when the Democratic Senate bloc indicated it was prepared to abandon its policy of withholding necessary votes on the 93 million dollars in non-preferred appropriations for state-aided hospitals and universities.

It was apparent the Senate minority, although dissatisfied with the restoration of about 23 million dollars of the $94,500,000 cut from the administration budget, was resigned to the fact the Republican leadership had gone as far as it would in restoring the cuts.

The House voted 140-31 to accept the $1,165,000,000 General Appropriations Bill with some of the Democratic members joining a solid Republican vote for the bill.

U. S. in Appeal To High Court In Girard Case

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government appealed directly to the Supreme Court today to reverse a court order preventing it from surrendering GI William S. Girard to Japanese authorities for a manslaughter trial.

A petition filed with the court by Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. asked the court to reverse last Tuesday's decision by Federal Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy.

McGarraghy had ruled that a Japanese trial for Girard would violate his constitutional rights.

The government petition said McGarraghy's decision is "clearly wrong" and "public interest in an early disposition of this case" is very great.

Brownell asked the court to accept the case for review, and urged that it schedule oral argument "if deemed necessary, at an early date convenient to the court." He also suggested that Girard's attorneys be required to reply to his petition within two days.

Both Sides of Twp. Annexation Case Presented

The State Council of Education today studied the Monessen-Rostraver Twp. school controversy after listening to two days of testimony by both sides.

The Monessen case was presented in Harrisburg on Tuesday. Yesterday, Rostraver Twp. gave its side.

The decision of the State Council will affect about 70 students who live in the area annexed by the city of Monessen in 1955.

At that time, the Council ruled that the area would continue to be part of the Rostraver school district.

Since then, residents — at their own expense — have been petitioning the state to review its decision.

Monessen's case was presented by Superintendent o Schools Dr. Joseph Pallone, Dr. Ralph Cherkin and Attorney Louis Manderino

Rostraver was represented at the hearings by a large delegation which included Superintendent of Schools E. F. Carter; Attorney S. C. Sorber; School Directors Thomas G. Patterson; Samuel Weightman and Peter H. Backstrom; school administrators James O. Leeper, Harry R. Fleming and Thomas Gilmer, and private citizens Fran Buscanics, Alex Turda, Robert Ammon, Mrs. Bernard Massa and Mrs. Charles Zolak.

In the past Rostraver Twp. has argued that loss of the annexed area would force a real estate tax rate increase of six mills.

A spokesman for the Monessen group said that evidence was presented in an effort to show such was not the case.

Neither Monessen nor Rostraver schools officials had any idea when the State Council would make known its decision.

Stassen Unveils New Disarmament Plan Formally

LONDON (UP)—Harold E. Stassen formally unveils a new U.S. disarmament plan today. The way toward suspension of nuclear tests was smoothed by completion of Britain's first hydrogen bomb test series.

The five-nation U.N. disarmament subcommittee was meeting this afternoon in hopes of agreeing on a "first small step" that would lead to eventual worldwide disarmament and lessen the threat of war.

Delegates predicted the first goal would be an end to nuclear tests. President Eisenhower endorsed this Wednesday and successful conclusion of Britain's Christmas Island H-bomb tests erased many British objections.

Britain announced Wednesday night it had exploded its third and last H-bomb and the ministry of supply said "this third explosion completes this series of tests." There were unconfirmed reports the blast was the biggest yet of the series.

Until the announcement Britain was reported unwilling to suspend its tests; it was still unwilling to free the production of fissionable United States and presumably have the big stocks built up by the materials since it is a newly arrived nuclear power and does not have the big stocks built up by the United States and presumably Russia

A Washington dispatch quoted Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson as saying the Senate will send representatives to the London talks if Eisenhower requests it to. Johnson indicated any such delegates should have a limited role which would not invade the functions of the executive branch.

Fayette County Adopts Zoning Rules for All

Fayette County Commissioners have adopted a zoning ordinance to apply to all municipalities in the county except that in which a zoning ordinance is already in effect.

At present Connellsville is the only municipality in the county having such an ordinance. Uniontown and Perryopolis have ordinances ready for adoption, which, after approval, will remove their areas from the jurisdiction of the county ordinance.

The county ordinance sets aside substantial acreages of ideally situated industrial property in various sections of the county, so that new industries will have a good area in which they may locate with highway and railroad facilities.

It also zones certain properties so that existing or new industries may expand.

Compromise on Movie Tax Is Sent to Leader

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Legislature has approved compromise legislation to reduce local taxes on motion picture admission to 5 per cent.

Both the House and Senate accepted a joint conference committee report restoring half of the present 10 per cent tax and sent the measure to Gov. George M. Leader. The Senate earlier had refused to go along with House amendments which included driveins in an outright removal of the admissions tax and set the effective date back from Jan. 1 to July 1, 1958.

The approved bill specified a 5 per cent local tax with an effective date of July 1, 1958. The Measure would amend the so-called "tax anything" law of 1947 permitting communities to levy up to a 10 per cent tax on movie admissions in every county except Philadelphia.

(The Monessen School District has an annual one per cent tax on motion picture admissions. Rostraver Twp. School District and Rostraver Twp. Road Supervisors share a one per cent tax equally.)

County GOP Stand to Be Discussed Saturday

The Westmoreland County Republican Committee will be asked to adopt a campaign platform when it meets in Greensburg Saturday afternoon, it was learned today.

Although the main reason for the special meeting is to select a candidate for a judicial vacancy, a statement of the party's stand on county issues also will be submitted.

The platform proposals are being drafted by a committee headed by Attorney Avra N. Pershing one of the two Republican candidates for common pleas judge.

Pershing himself had no comment to make on the project today, saying any statement would have to come from the GOP executive committee.

But it was reported that Pershing had insisted on a statement of principles at a meeting of the executive committee with the candidates on Tuesday.

Also under consideration by Republican leaders is appointment of a campaign manager to conduct the November general election campaign.

Several of the candidates are understood to consider this a "must", and the executive committee agreed to discuss it at another meeting on Friday, June 28.

The County Committee meeting will be held in the Greensburg High School at 2 p. m. Saturday. It is expected that the committee will designate Willis E. Topper, Greensburg attorney and former county chairman, as the GOP candidate for a court seat made vacant by the death several weeks

Recounts Fail to Change Results

GREENSBURG, Pa. (UP)—Recounts of ballots have failed to change primary election results in two Westmoreland County municipalities.

Joseph Kavel Jr. was adjudged victor in the race for the Democratic nomination for tax collector of Hempfield Twp. His margin was reduced by 13 votes but he still led 78 to 65 over incumbent Albert H. Booth. Kavel had asked for the new tally because of an alleged discrepancy.

In the race for tax collector of Mt. Pleasant Twp., John Bysick lost two votes but he still had the Democratic nomination over Andrew Harbin, 668 to 643.

Armistice Meeting In Korea Tomorrow

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—The United Nations Command today summoned the Communists to a meeting of the military armistice groups at Panmunjom Friday. Persistent reports said the U.N. Command would nullify the 1953 armistice agreement.

The U.S. military announced it was flying 20 American correspondents from Japan to Panmunjom to cover the meeting but would not confirm the Allies were ready to end the agreement, repeatedly violated by the Reds in building up a massive striking force in North Korea.

The armistice agreement was signed in Panmunjom on July 27, 1953, by North Korean Gen. Nam Il for the Communists and Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr. of the U.S. Army as senior delegate for the U.N. Command.

It was not known here exactly what the ramifications of such a move would be. But diplomatic sources suggested one intention might be to replace the outmoded Korean War material of the United Nations forces.

Leaders of the U.N. Command said the Communists brought modern jet planes into North Korea in violation of the armistice, built up major air bases within easy striking distance of Japan, and revamped the once-defeated North Korean army with the latest heavy armor.

South Korea repeatedly has declared the armistice agreement voided by the massive Communist build-up while complaining that the ROK forces were limited to such weapons as those in use at the end of the fighting four years ago.

South Korea also has appealed for the introduction of American atomic weapons to counter those it said Russia has supplied the Redforces in North Korea. The United States already has weapons with atomic capability in Japan, Okinawa and Formosa.

Nuclear Tests Suspension in Policy Shift

WASHINGTON (UP)—U.S. disarmament policy has undergone a January-to-June modification on suspending nuclear tests and halting nuclear weapons production, officials disclosed today.

President Eisenhower forecast the shift when he told a news conference he would be "perfectly delighted to make some satisfactory arrangement for a temporary suspension of tests" pending a search for a permanent ban on tests.

Until very recently, the United States was adamantly opposed to any suspension of nuclear tests. In January, it took the position that tests should only be "limited" as a step toward "ultimate elimination." It was feared that a suspension would become permanent because world public opinion would not permit resumption of testing.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. told the U.N. General Assembly on Jan. 14 that any agreement to limit and eliminate nuclear tests would be a second or even third step toward disarmament. Lodge said prior agreements would have to be negotiated and "put into effect" to (1) divert production of fissionable materials from weapons to peaceful uses, and (2) to reduce existing nuclear stockpiles.

Administration policy to be unfolded soon at the London disarmament talks clearly envisages a suspension of nuclear tests, officials said. This plan would be linked with some commitment by the Russians to work out a plan on halting use of fissionable materials in war production. But this no longer would have to come ahead of an agreement on nuclear testing, as Lodge declared in January.

Two Car Accident Here Early Today

Neither driver was injured in a two car accident in the 300 block of East Schoonmaker Ave. this morning at 1:30 o clock, Monessen police reported.

According to police, Joseph Hrycko, 909 First St., Monessen, stopped his car to talk to a friend.

A car, operated by Robert Dupree, R. D. Box 130, Fayette City, was unable to stop in time and crashed into the rear of the Hrycko machine, causing damage to both vehicles, police said.

Kinzua Money Approved; Brownsville Lock Survey

House Okays Millions for Other Projects

WASHINGTON (UP)—The House has passed a one million dollar appropriation to start construction of the Kinzua Dam. It also approved spending $9 865 000 for 11 other navigation and flood control projects in Pennsylvania.

Included among these projects is $50,000 for a study of a new lock and dam to replace the existing structures on the Monongahela River at Brownsville.

The Pennsylvania projects were included in an omnibus public works bill earmarking $814,813,023 for 285 river, harbor, flood control and reclamation projects across the nation. The works eventually will cost the government about 12 billion dollars.

The appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1 were approved Wednesday by a voice vote and sent to the Senate for final test.

Included among the Pennsylvania items were $2,200,000 for construction work at the Bear Creek Reservoir on the Lehigh River near White Haven and two million dollars for construction of the Dyberry Reservoir near Honesdale.

Other Pennsylvania projects were:

Bethlehem, $100,000 for planning a local protection system; Bradford, $500,000 for work on a channel improvement project. Curwensville Reservoir, $50,000 for planning; Braddock, one million dollars for raising the crest o the Monongahela River Dam; Kettle Creek, $215,000 for planning a reservoir; Maxwell Lock and Dam, Monongahela River, $50,000, for planning a new facility to replace Dam 8; Prompton Reservoir, $1,700,000 for construction, and Stillwater Reservoir, two million dollars for construction.

The House appropriation for the Kinzua Dam brought to a near close a battle which started in 1936 to erect a flood control project on the Allegheny River near Warren, Pa.

The fight continued until almost the last minute. Rep. John Taber (R-N.Y.), ranking minority member on the House Appropriations Committee, introduced an amendment to the omnibus bill calling for the elimination of the Kinzua project.

Tabor said the dam, which will eventually cost $101,000,000, was "five or six times as big as could possibly be needed." He was joined in opposition by Rep. John Saylor (R-Pa.). The House rejected the arguments and the motion, 122 to 43.

The Seneca Nation of Indians which claims the Kinzua Dam would flood six square miles of its reservation near Salamanca, N.Y., announced it would continue efforts to block the flood control project.

"We are prepared to go all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary," George D. Heron, Seneca treasurer, declared. "We feel we have been dealt an injustice."

Sportsmen's groups had joined the Senecas in opposing the project. Spokesmen declared the dam would destroy recreational facilities in the Allegheny watershed. Other opponents said smaller dams could provide better protection.

Rep. Leo H. Gavin (R-Pa.) led the fight for the dam. The Oil City Republican described the project as the "key to the whole flood control program in the Allegheny River Valley. Pennsylvania's Sens. Edward Martin and Joseph S. Clark also testified in support at House Appropriations Subcommittee hearings last month.

Eyes Damaged in Nuclear Blast

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Two women suffered eye damage while watching Tuesday's atomic blast from a point 54 miles distant, the Atomic Energy Commission disclosed Wednesday.

Judith Burke and Vaune Graves, employes of an electrical and engineering company, were among six persons who witnessed the blast from Henry Mountain an unrestricted area.

State Mine Official Tells Turnpike Story

HARRISBURG (UP) — Defense attorneys in the Pennsylvania Turnpike conspiracy trial today were to cross-examine a state official who charged the turnpike paid almost 10 times too much for mine-filling work on the Northeastern Extension.

Daniel H. Connelly, state deputy secretary of mines, testified Wednesday that work for which the turnpike commission paid $7,559,288 could have been done by the state Mines Department for $82,881.

"Most of the work done by Manu-Mine was not necessary," Connelly said. "What was necessary...could have been done for $4.50 per foot."

Under the terms of a 1955 contract with the commission, Manu-Mine charged $12.50 per foot for the drilling of holes through which filling materials could be pumped into mine voids beneath the roadway.

The nine defendants, including Manu-Mine president Charles W. Stickler Jr., vice president Clayton A. Landsidle, and five former top turnpike officials, are on trial charged with conspiring to defraud the commission of "millions of dollars" through the contract. Almost seven million dollars was paid to Manu-Mine before the commission terminated the pact in February, 1956. The company has brought a civil suit against the commission for payment of an additional $1,500,000 which it claims it is due for work performed.

The prosecution also has on hand two other Mines Department experts who are expected to testify at the conclusion of Connelly's testimony later today.

John R. was the only Stieska running for mayor, that he had run in the past and that the voters were well aware that he was the only candidate.

Stieska took the stand and testified that the people of Monessen were well aware of his candidacy. He said he had mailed 600 letters to registered Republican voters, enclosing stickers and detailing how they could be used on the machines.

Stieska said he had conducted a very active campaign on both party tickets.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Judge Laird said he would study the briefs presented and make a decision later.

Besides Snyder Stieska was represented by Attorney Wayne Donahue of New Kensington, the Republican nominee for district attorney of Westmoreland County.

County Republican leaders are encouraging Stieska to fight for the nomination in the hope of furnishing opposition to Mayor Parente this fall. They figure this will help GOP county candidates.

Attorney David H. Weiss an assistant D. A. and city solicitor of Monessen, was associated with Shire and McCormick in Parente's behalf.

There was a possibility, however, that the name of Joseph M. Loughran would be presented to the committee. Loughran an independent Democrat who split with the Democratic organization and made a strong but unsuccessful primary campaign for a judicial nomination, is reported to be interested in the GOP designation.

Most Republicans figure Loughran's chances were torpedoed by the executive committee's recommendation adopted unanimously Tuesday, that the county committee consider only registered Republicans for the court vacancy.

the residents themselves purchase it.

"We have several miles of dirt street in the borough and it would be too costly for us to oil them all as much as we'd like too," pointed out Jones.

Jones said the borough had considered taking over the area between the Vine-Hill intersection to provide a through street to the Express Highway.

"We had even started condemnation proceedings, but dropped them when it became apparent that the highway would be limited access, thus making the street useless," Jones said.

Legal Problems

The burgess also disclosed the borough solicitor has been studying the legal problems involved in blocking off the street.

Actually motorists have two other streets which will get them into North Belle Vernon.

Locust St., which passes the State Police barracks, is a state road. And a block further, Wilson St. is open to traffic.

Both of those roads are also unpaved.

Byrd — Humphrey

WARNS AGAINST INFLATION — Reuring Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey chats with Senate finance committee chairman Harry F. Byrd before appearing in front of the committee. Humphrey said that a "new threat of renewed inflation" is perhaps the most serious domestic economic problem facing the nation.

Senate in Showdown Over Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate today headed for a showdown on the opening battle over the civil rights bill.

Supporters said publicly and southern opponents conceded privately that the House-passed battle would result in keeping the bill out of the hands of the Senate Judiciary Committee where a similar bill has been bottled up for months.

A civil rights coalition headed by Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland and Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) resorted to a seldom-used Senate rule to try to put the bill directly on the Senate calendar.

Southerners vowed to fight the move but were expected to put off any filibuster until the measure actually comes up for debate some time next month.

However, Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.) said he was ready to talk now for days and weeks." He also threatened to try to delay the measure by insisting that the House bill be read word for word on the second reading instead of by title as ordinarily done.

Other congressional news:

Economic: Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) said he would question Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey closely about the value of his stockholdings since he took office in 1953. Gore, a member of the Senate Finance Committee investigating government fiscal policies, said he was informed the value of Humphrey's stock increased since 1953. Humphrey was recalled for the third straight day by the committee.

Public Works: The House passed an $814,813,023 public works bill and sent it to the Senate. The House trimmed the bill more than 61 million dollars. The bill includes funds for 285 rivers, harbors and flood control projects.

Hells Canyon: Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) called on the Senate to "right the wrong at Hells Canyon" and authorize the government to construct a single high Hells Canyon dam. Democrats are sponsoring legislation to reverse the administration's decision to allow the privately-owned Idaho Power Co. to build three low dams instead on the Snake River between Idaho and Oregon. Debate on the bill opened Wednesday and a vote was not expected at least until Friday.

Leaks: Chairman John E. Moss of a House subcommittee on freedom of information took issue with the recommendations of a 12-man security commission what may be published. Moss demanded to know what evidence the commission had for curbing the publication of government material not officially cleared.

Legislature

In the Senate the Democrats held firm against the measure but it carried 27-19.

Senate Democratic Leader John H. Dent voiced the general attitude of his party's Senate delegation on the measure.

"It is your budget—every bit of it," Dent said. "And if the services in Pennsylvania have to be cut, the responsibility also is yours. I don't think that in this modern age the people of Pennsylvania are going to be satisfied with 'shinbones and sowbelly'."

Dent had argued that recent new estimates had added greatly to the expected state tax income, and more of the money cut from the administration budget should be replaced. But Sen. Edward J. Kessler (R-Lancaster) countered:

"Just because somebody said we will get more revenue than we figured on is no reason why we should spend up to that revenue."

With the big money bill for running state government on its way to the governor's desk, the Senate passed all of the non-preferred appropriations but one—a $768,975 allocation for state-aided homes.

Democrats proposed an amendment appropriating $2,735,000 for mental health clinics, contending the money had been omitted from the calculations in the general appropriations measure. Republican leaders said they needed time to study the major money measure to ascertain if the clinic appropriation had not been included. This ended the attempt to carry the session through to final adjournment.

Truman Hits GOP In State

HARRISBURG (UP)—Pennsylvania Democrats opened their drive for funds Wednesday night with a fighting speech by former President Harry S. Truman and a pledge to make Republican cuts in Gov. George M. Leader's budget for expanded state services a major issue in the 1958 election campaign.

Truman was the feature attraction at the $100-a-plate dinner sponsored by the Democratic State Committee in the Zembo Mosque attended by party leaders and almost 5,000 ticket purchasers.

He leveled blasts at Republicans on both the national and state levels, charging the Eisenhower administration with having bungled foreign policy and "balled up" the nation's domestic finances and Republicans in the Legislature with scuttling worthwhile programs sought by Leader.

The former president said the overall goal for world peace appeared to be "slipping backward" and blamed "lack of leadership in the State Department and the White House.

On the domestic front, Truman accused the Eisenhower administration of mishandling the public debt, attemptin to "bust the farmer" for special interest, of putting the little businessman out of business, and making "the bloated industrialist more greedy."

Barr Sets Tone

He compared the 1957 GOP-controlled Legislature with the "good-for-nothing, do-nothing Republican 80th Congress."

Democratic State Chairman Joseph M. Barr and Mayor David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh set the tone of the meeting when they rapped GOP slashes in Leader's programs for mental health, industrial development and other activities and said those issues would provide the heavy campaign ammunition for the Democratic Party next year.

Barr said the Republican Party was getting "ready to complete the burial of a decent, humane program for Pennsylvania...in my opinion they are celebrating the funeral of the Republican Party in Pennsylvania."

Lawrence, also national Democratic committeeman from Pennsylvania, said Leader "has written a platform not only for his administration but for the Democratic governor who will follow him . . . the icy counting house of the Republican Party has made the issue."

"The Republicans have drawn the lines of battle," Lawrence added. "As Democrats we welcome their choice."

State Aid to School Districts Passes Assembly

HARRISBURG (UP)—The General Assembly has cleared legislation to increase state aid to school districts over the next two years by $31,400,000.

The House Wednesday accepted Senate amendments in their original bill which added about one million dollars and gave poorer school districts additional financial aid. The chamber approved the amendments, 168-20, after the Democrats stated for the record their objections to provisions in the bill which redefined reimbursement tables and increased millage rates.

The bill was sent to Gov. George M. Leader, who vetoed a similar bill last year spelling out payment of teachers' pay increments because that legislation did not provide a revenue source.

The Senate revision would give the poorer school districts an additional $130 per teaching unit over the House draft. The reimbursement for Pittsburgh was cut back $17 to $2,700 per unit while that for Philadelphia was upped $5 to $2,738.

The maximum subsidy per teaching unit for the 1957-58 period would be increased to $5,800 from the present $5,100 while the local effort rate was hiked from the current four mills to 4¾.

Ruffsdale Mine Inspection Held

Adequate rock - dusting of all mine surfaces that are not wet to guard against coal-dust-ignition hazards is urged for the Ella mine of the Ella Coal Company at Ruffsdale, in a federal reinspection report released today by the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

The 20-man operation, of whom 14 worked underground, produced 150 tons of coal a day when examined by Inspector M. J. Satterfield.

The inspector also recommended several electrical improvements, adequate fire - fighting equipment underground, a proper main-fan installation, and self-rescuers for all underground employees.

A SUIT FOR THE WEDDING — Leland Thomas Cummings, Jr., and his fiancee, Mary Louise Werner, daughter of a wealthy industrialist, talk over their upcoming wedding, which is tangled by a half-million dollar suit. His parents are suing her parents for allegedly luring him away from them and the Catholic religion. Mary Louise, 21, said the suit was a "desperate effort to block our wedding." The wedding is scheduled for June 29 in Wauwatosa, Wis.

Diplomat's Daughter, Groom Picked Up

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UP) — State police today reported they picked up Christina Wennerstrom, daughter of a Swedish diplomat, and 18-year-old congressional page boy, Hew Williams, who have been missing since June 2 when it was believed they eloped.

Authorities said the two had been married in West Virginia and were driving back from Canada when they were picked up in Allenwood, about 15 miles south of here.

The two will be held at the nearby Montoursville state police barracks until the girl's parents arrive.

Their auto, driven by Williams, was halted for speeding on Route 15 and the two were originally held because they didn't have the money to pay the fine of $10 and $5 costs.

They were arrested by Troopers Robert Gorman and Clifford O'Neill and taken before a justice of the peace for a hearing. The couple identified themselves as the missing two, state police Sgt. L. R. Foulkrod said.

Following their arrest, they were taken to breakfast in the custody of a trooper.

The 16 - year - old girl is the daughter of a former Swedish military attache who has returned to Stockholm on reassignment. Williams, from Falls Church, Va., is a Senate page.

Christina's mother, Mrs. Stig Wennerstrom, stayed behind when her husband went to Sweden in hopes the girl would be found.

A Swedish Embassy spokesman said last Tuesday the Wennerstroms would not welcome a marriage between youngsters until they completed their schooling.

Williams' mother however, has indicated she is sympathetic with the young couple and is willing to forgive and forget if they will return home.

An embassy spokesman said the Wennerstroms were aware of their daughter's affection for Williams but did not regard the romance as anything more serious than the typical high school "going steady" arrangement.

They said they thought Williams was a "nice boy" but felt it would be difficult for him to take on the burden of a marriage while he is so far from completing his education.

The spokesman said marriage between persons so young would require special government permission in Sweden.

Plants Invited To Build in Ohio River Valley

STEUBENVILLE, O. (UP) — Gov. C. William O'Neill has urged industry to locate more new plants in the Ohio River Valley because "it's such a darn good place to do business."

O'Neill, who grew up at Marietta, told visiting industrialists and bankers here Wednesday night the region was the "logical site" for new factories seeking to take advantage of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

He said the state's favorable tax picture, natural resources, manpower and availability of transportation and markets are strong factors working for the area.

The governor, returning to the hills he loves, made the comments at a banquet sponsored by the Upper Ohio Valley Development Council, a group of industrialists and civic leaders from four Ohio counties and two in West Virginia.

For the past two days, the group has been wooing new investments of all types. Visitors have been invited to inspect first - hand the boom that is taking place in Columbiana, Jefferson, Harrison and Belmont counties of Ohio and in Brooke and Hancock counties of West Virginia.

O'Neill said industrial expansion should be boosted even more with the eventual construction of a superhighway from Lake Erie to the Ohio River.

Surprise Party for Fayette City Priest On 10th Anniversary

The Rev. Charles W. Ribick, pastor of St. Edward's R. C. Church, Fayette City, is in for a surprise when he returns this Sunday from a week-long religious retreat.

Members of the parish are planning a big celebration to commemorate Father Ribick's 10th anniversary as their pastor.

And since the Fayette City priest has shut himself off from the outside world for a week of meditation at St. Vincent College, he is unaware of the "surprise party."

The event will also mark St. Edward's 10th anniversary as a parish. Previous to that, St. Edward's had mission status.

As the parish's first and only pastor, Father Ribick organized these organizations: Ladies Guild of Christian Mothers, Holy Name Society, Junior and Senior Sodalities, and the parish Boy Scout Troop.

All of those groups are sponsoring Sunday's celebration.

The Christian Mothers will offer a solemn high mass at 11:30 in behalf of Father Ribick. The Revs. Anthony Hardy and Henry Murphy will assist the church pastor. Delivering the sermon will be Rev. Rudolph Halvonik.

All members of the parish are asked to receive communion in tribute to the pastor.

A banquet at Twin Coaches beginning at 6 p. m. will conclude the observance.

The main speaker will be the Very Rev. Henry Hanse, of St. Sebastian Church, Belle Vernon.

In charge of arrangements for the party are Attorney Joseph Rygil, president of the church committee, and Ruth McGinsky, president of the Christian Mothers.

Margaret Baran is secretary and John Muzina treasurer for the affair. The banquet is open to the public and reservations may be made by contacting any member of the large committee.

Transportation from Fayette City to Twin Coaches will be arranged.

Father Ribick was assigned to Fayette City in 1947. He is a native of Donora, where he attended St. Domenic's parochial School. He later studied at St. Fidelis Seminary in Herman, Pa., and was ordained in 1942 at St. Vincent College.

Father Ribick served parishes in West Aliquippa and Donora before assuming his Fayette City duties.

UN in Harsh Indictment of Soviet Communism

— A United Nations special com—A United Natons special committee reported today that last year's Hungarian revolution was a spontaneous nationwide uprising crushed by the brutal intervention of Russian troops without invitation.

It was the most sweeping indictment of Soviet Communism ever issued by the United Nations.

A five-man committee appointed last January to conduct a full and objective investigation of the revolt announced its findings in a 150,000 word report. Its conclusions were based on evidence taken from 111 witnesses—some of them still loyal to the Communist Party—in hearings held here and in Vienna, London, Rome and Geneva.

Keith C. O. Shann, Australian ambassador to The Philippines, who prepared the report, said the revolution was "not an anti-Soviet revolution as such" and was not fomented by outside agencies, as, for example, Radio Free Europe.

The three main conclusions of the committee, comprising also representatives of Denmark, Ceylon, Tunisia and Uruguay, were these, Shann said:

1. There was, in fact, intervention by force by the Soviet Union to crush the uprising and to overthrow "a legal and popularly-supported government."

2. The revolt was "a spontaneous national uprising not assisted from outside and not a counter-revolution to restore an old government."

3. The present government of Premier Janos Kadar "did not at the time of its installation and does not now have popular support."

Law Will Curb 'Tie-in' Sales

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today received legislation to prohibit so-called "tie-in" sales by magazine distributors to curtail the sale of obscene literature in Pennsylvania.

The House unanimously approved technical Senate amendments Wednesday to the bill that require retailers to take "smut" would permit district attorneys to crack down on distributors who magazines to obtain desirable magazines.

The bill was part of a package of four to curb the sale and distribution of obscene material in the state sponsored by Rep. Edwin W. Tompkins (R-Cameron).

Davis to Take Stand

KITTANNING, Pa. (UP)—Richard Tallie Davis may take the stand Tuesday to plead for his life in his trial for the murder of an expectant mother.

But, first the prosecution will close its case with the introduction of a confession allegedly signed by Davis admitting the murder of Mrs. Emily Shupe Foster, 25, in a holdup.

Special Prosecutor Samuel Strauss indicated he would call state police Sgt. James Barger to read into the record Davis's statement of March 19 when he purportedly confessed under questioning and told police of his activities during the night of Jan. 30.

Davis is accused of bludgeoning Mrs. Foster with a lug wrench in front of her Leechburg home. She died in her husband's arms while an ambulance was on the way.

The escaped convict from a West Virginia road gang, who also faces 11 charges of molesting women, robbery and assault, has indicated he wants to take the stand despite objections of his attorney, Floy Jones. Jones admitted he had no other witnesses.

Strauss demanded the death penalty.

"This was a killing in perpetration of a robbery," the prosecutor declared. "We need not show there was premeditation. The law of Pennsylvania says that any killing done in the perpetration of a felony is deemed murder in the first degree."

Another Experiment In Court Photography

ANOTHER judge has been willing to experiment, in cooperation with newspapers, with the use of modern techniques of news photography to report courtroom proceedings.

Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County, permitted photographers to make pictures in the courtroom during a murder trial of considerable public interest in the Kittanning area. Two photographers were chosen to represent all papers of the district. And they made pictures while the trial was in progress, using small cameras and only the light available in the room. No flash bulbs were required.

The results of this experiment seem to have been satisfactory to Judge Graff. He commented that the picture-making did not disturb the proceedings. And certainly a news story accompanied by pictures is much more informative than one without pictures.

Similar results are reported everywhere these cooperative experiments are undertaken. Judges are convincing themselves by actual experience that news photography today is a very different process than it was a generation ago when picture-making in courtrooms was banned on ethical grounds as being offensive to the dignity of the court.

* * *

IN WESTMORELAND County, of course, we have quite a different situation. For the judges in this county not only are unwilling to experiment with the new techniques — they actually forbid pictures to be taken anywhere in the courthouse. And in the now famous test case, they went so far as to try to send to jail the newspapermen who violated their edict for the purpose of testing its legality.

The test, which is proving long and expensive both to the newspapers and to the taxpayers of the county, has not been completed, and there is strong likelihood that it may go to the U. S. Supreme Court. Federal Judge Wallace Gourley in Pittsburgh is just now considering the question.

But while this unique legal battle is being fought, the real issue as to how modern news photography can best be used to increase public information about courtroom proceedings is being worked out in sensible fashion by open-minded judges and responsible newspaper editors, both being conscious of their separate and mutual obligations.

Man Wanted

THE REPUBLICAN leaders of Westmoreland County obviously are having difficulty finding top-drawer Republican lawyers willing to go on their ticket as a candidate for a common pleas court vacancy. The nomination is scheduled to be made at a meeting of the Republican County Committee on Saturday.

It is not hard to understand the reluctance of outstanding attorneys to accept this designation. Clearly it would mean a hard and probably expensive campaign, and as matters now stand, the chances of election could hardly be said to be good.

But no competent attorney in Westmoreland County needs to be told that the common pleas court has become the satellite of a political machine whose standards of public service are not very high. And if this machine succeeds in electing the two candidates it nominated at the primary last month, and if it adds to them a third candidate of the same stripe to fill this vacancy, can any informed person doubt that these standards will go still lower?

Are we wrong in saying that lawyers have a particular responsibility where the competence, integrity and independence of the courts are concerned? Aside from the fact that the courts are their own workshops, do not lawyers have a special duty to the public to keep the administration of justice in worthy hands?

The issue of the coming campaign, as we see it, is going to be the control of the courts by this political machine. And in the circumstances as they exist, the Republican party has to be the instrument by which this control is broken if it is broken at all.

The Republicans already have nominated two judicial candidates, Robert H. Rial and Avra N. Pershing Jr., whom we believe independent voters of both parties can support with confidence. We hope they can complete their ticket with a third candidate of high professional calibre.

Harry Truman gave the Republican-controlled Pennsylvania legislature some of his well known "hell" in a Harrisburg speech. That probably will make the Republicans figure they're doing things about right.

Today and Tomorrow—

Arms Curb Next Task For West

By WALTER LIPPMANN

"Anyone coming from Europe", said Barbara Ward Jackson at the Harvard Commencement, "must candidly report that distaste for the Atlantic Association is widely expressed. . . . The distrust, the envy, the fear of American power and competition — which are inevitable given the nation's relative strengths — are now unchecked by any opposite sense of working with America to achieve any legal purpose and of experiencing Mr. Lippmann first - hand the energy, the vitality, and the imagination which America can bring to any high task it proposes to itself."

The high task which Lady Jackson had in mind, would be one like the Marshall Plan ten years ago, in which a free coalition of nations would unite "in time of peace to achieve some great and constructive aim."

Reading her sensitive and eloquent words, I find myself wondering what has happened in these ten years, why it is that Western nations are no longer united in some great, overriding common enterprise. Have the people and their leaders deteriorated, and are they less high-minded and far-seeing and bold than they were when they came together in the Marshall Plan? Or have conditions changed, and are the Western nations confronted with problems which are very different indeed from those which they dealt with ten years ago?

Saved Europe

The Marshall Plan was addressed to the recovery of Western Europe from the damage and the dislocation of the war. All the nations participating in it, including the United States which financed the dollar requirements, were jointly and severally, as a community and as separate nations, vitally interested in making the plan a success. In Europe, the failure of the plan would have meant great misery, and in more than one nation social upheaval and perhaps civil war. For the United States, the failure of the plan might well have meant the loss of its best friends and allies, and a dangerous isolation in an unfriendly world.

The Atlantic nations were, as Lady Jackson put it, working with America to achieve a large purpose. But that large purpose was the rescue and the salvation of the Atlantic nations themselves, and their vital interests were directly engaged. What, we must ask ourselves, is the large purpose today which might unite them once more in "some great and constructive aim"?

By way of answering this question Lady Jackson made three suggestions. One would be to develop a low tariff area for the Atlantic community as a whole. A second would be to finance the foreign exchange requirements of the Indian Five-Year Plan in order to prove, by contrast with China, that it is possible in Asia to develop a country without the totalitarian compulsion. A third suggestion was that the Western nations participate in the development of West Africa, which is within sight of national independence.

For myself, all these proposals seem to be excellent. But I cannot believe that lower tariffs or the financing of India or West Africa can generate in the Western world anything like the sense of high common enterprise which existed in the great days of the Marshall Plan.

The Arms Problem

Can anything develop it today? Or is the Western world spellbound by the great doom that now prevails almost everywhere? Ten years ago it was a vital necessity that Western Europe should recover, and it was necessity which inspired and animated the common enterprise of the Marshall Plan. Is there today any similar necessity, one which is central, which engages all the Atlantic nations jointly and severally, which catches the vital interests of the masses of the people?

I think there is a ground for the fear of armaments which is fast becoming a critical problem not only in international affairs but in the internal affairs of all the military powers. The great dispute over the U. S. budget is really about the effects of the civilian life of the economy and the mounting costs of armaments. In all Western countries public life is dominated by the same issue of military versus private and public civilian spending.

We need have no illusions about the difficulty of coming to an agreement among ourselves and with Russia which would limit and stabilize the competition in armaments. But this is the central and overriding task today as was the recovery of Western Europe ten years ago.

The less certainly not to disarm while the world is so divided. Perhaps it is not even to reduce substantially the present scale of armaments. The task is to bring the competition itself under international control before it becomes intolerably costly and before the anxieties of the nuclear testing and of the threat of nuclear war brings us to some breaking point.

Moscow Rule

Merry-Go-Round—

Dixie-GOP Coalition Split

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The Dixie-Republican coalition which has operated so successfully for so many years is dead.

This was behind the furious statement of Mississippi's Congressman Bill Colmer who, turning to Republicans on the left of the House floor, blurted:

Mr. Pearson

"I remind my friends on the left that there have been times in the history of Congress in recent years, during the Roosevelt and the Truman administrations as well as the Eisenhower administration, when support from that section of the country known as the South has not only been welcomed but it has been sought."

What he meant was that the coalition which has traded Republican votes for Southern Democratic votes to block bills favoring Negroes and bills favoring labor and public power was dead.

The promise of more Negro votes in 1960 plus the Negroes' growing swing to the Republicans, however, was too much. Even stanch Republicans who have been foundation stones of the coalition in the past, deserted. Furiously and desperately, Mississippi's Colmer had tried to line up deals with the Republicans to block the civil rights bill. So had courtly Congressman Howard Smith of Virginia. This time Republicans refused to horse-trade. They spurned every offer.

Deal on Hells Canyon?

The horse-trading has now turned to the Senate, where Mississippi's cigar-puffing big Jim Eastland has proposed deals on Hells Canyon in order to get trial by jury inserted in the civil rights bill.

Eastland even invaded the civil rights camp and approached seven strong civil rights senators as Jim Murray of Montana, Warren Magnuson of Washington and Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

Originally, Murray had come to Eastland seeking votes to approve a federal dam on the Snake River at Hells Canyon. Murray had lined up 43 votes, needed only five more to guarantee passage.

"I need help on Hells Canyon," he told Eastland.

"I need help on civil rights," Eastland shot back.

Obviously Murray was tempted. In Montana, civil rights is no problem, but Hells Canyon is a big issue. But no deal was made.

Later, Eastland went to Magnuson of Washington with a specific deal. He offered to deliver the necessary five votes to approve the controversial Hells Canyon dam, if Magnuson would line up enough Western Democrats to prevent the Senate from stopping the filibuster on the jury-trial amendment.

Magnuson has been sounding out his colleagues regarding the offer.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic leader Lyndon Johnson is doing his best to work out a civil rights compromise. He has offered to push through the civil rights bill if the proponents will accept the jury-trial amendment.

Johnson is telling senators privately: "Jim Eastland knows we have to have a civil rights bill. But he has got to have a jury trial. We've got to give him a jury-trial amendment."

Deals in House

Here is how the Dixie-Republican coalition went to pieces in the House of Representatives.

For a while it appeared to be forming. Congressman Smith of Virginia had offered Southern support to kill the school construction bill, which conservative Republicans oppose, if Republicans voted for trial by jury. He had also lined up Congressman William Miller of Lockport N. Y., to kill the pro-public Niagara Falls power bill if Miller, in return, sponsored the trial-by-jury amendment.

In addition, the South offered Miller another big concession. Southern votes were promised to block the bill of Brooklyn's Congressman Celler requiring corporations to notify the Justice Department before they merge. Big business wants to kill this, and Miller was guaranteed Southern support to do so if he would introduce the jury-trial amendment.

However, on June 10, ex-Speaker Joe Martin of Massachusetts told Miller not to introduce his jury-trial amendment. Joe insisted it would hurt the Republican party. Let a Democrat introduce the amendment, Joe said, not a Republican.

Martin had been working closely with the White House. Sherman Adams at the White House was determined not to have any Republicans lined up against civil rights.

Miller bowed, told Martin that if he considered the matter so important he would stand aside. He then notified Congressman Ed Willis, Louisiana Democrat, that he could not introduce the jury-trial amendment.

This left Southern leaders in a jam. They knew that the jury-trial amendment was certain to be defeated if introduced by a Southerner. So they approached Congressman De Witt Hyde, the Maryland Republican. Earlier he had championed the jury-trial idea, but this time he backed down.

Southern Democrats came back to Miller, urged him to introduce the amendment. They had supported his friends on the Mohawk Power Co. fight in the past. He could not walk out on the South now.

From the other side, Miller got pressure from his neighbor at Rochester, N. Y., Congressman Ken Keating, and from Les Arends of Illinois, the GOP whip. He was really on the spot. It was his original amendment. He had made an impassioned speech for it last year. He stood up for it consistently this year. He had his briefs and speeches all written. Finally he indicated that if no one else would introduce it he would.

At the last minute, however, Congressman Russell Keeney, new and conservative Republican from Lincoln's home state, volunteered. After a conference with Congressman John Dowdy, Texas Democrat, he offered the trial-by-jury amendment.

GOP leader Joe Martin was taken completely by surprise. Bawling out Keeney later in the presence of other congressmen he said:

"That was the most stupid, most ignorant thing I have every seen. You have interfered with and hurt the Republican party. I shall never forget what you have done."

The Cynic's Corner—

"Well, Senator, we're trying to see if we can shoot down an enemy bomber with the money you saved us on the missile program . . . !"

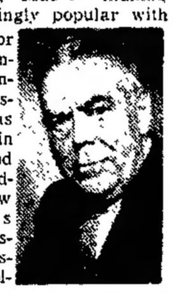
Behind The News—

Mao Becoming No. 1 Communist Leader

By CHARLES M. McCANN

Mao Tse-tung, the Red Chinese leader, is establishing himself as the No. 1 spokesman on Communist doctrine.

In doing so, Mao is making himself increasingly popular with those who favor the independent Communism which President Tito has established in Yugoslavia and which Red Leader Wladyslaw Gomulka has been able to establish to a lesser extent in Poland.



Consequently, Mao is making himself increasingly unpopular in Soviet Russia, which realizes that independent Communism is a threat to its own long-dominant position as the fountainhead of Marxian wisdom.

Mao's latest exposition of his views was broadcast Tuesday by the Peiping Radio—17,000 words of it.

The exposition was given in a speech which Mao made in Peiping on Feb. 27. Nothing was known about it abroad for two months.

Still Contradictions

One of Mao's chief points was that after more than seven years of Communist rule in China, there are still contradictions between the people and the government.

Everybody in both the Communist and the free worlds has known this all along, of course, and has known that the contradictions exist not only in China but in all Red-ruled countries.

But Mao's admission of this obvious fact has caused a big sensation in Communist countries whose governments do not dare admit that anybody but an evil-minded "diversionist" or "counter-revolutionary" ever disagrees with the party line.

Mao made his speech at a secret meeting of a "supreme state conference."

Speech Leaks Out

Parts of it started to leak out in Poland at the end of April after Polish Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz visited Peiping. Polish newspaper correspondents who accompanied Cyrankiewicz published parts of the speech in Warsaw newspapers.

The speech was important to Polish Communists because Mao gave strong encouragement to the desire of people in Red-ruled countries for some measure of independent thought and action. Mao also indirectly repeated his previous criticisms of Russia's brutal suppression of the Hungarian revolt.

It has long been known that Mao and his premier, Chou En-lai, openly supported the Polish revolt against Soviet domination and probably were responsible for its success.

The Woman's View—

Business Girl Needs More than Looks, Charm

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP) —Good looks and charm help a girl in the business world. But one successful business woman warns that the combination only opens the doors, it doesn't guarantee tenancy.

This advice to the girl graduate job hunting this summer comes from Dorothy Noyes, who managed to become a big wheel in advertising without developing an ulcer.

Gay Pauley

Miss Noyes is vice president and treasurer of Noyes and Sproul, Inc., an agency specializing in medical and pharmaceutical advertising. She was named Advertising Woman of 1957 by the Advertising Federation of America.

"Don't depend too much on good looks and charm," said Miss Noyes, who has both. "They may open the doors, but they won't make the sale."

Just Beginning

This was one of the five "don'ts" she believes all job applicants, men and women, should remember. The other four:

"Don't think your college diploma is the end of your education; actually you are just beginning to learn.

"Don't look for a mate who is physically attractive only.

"Don't flitter away your leisure time. Plan how to use it as constructively as your office hours.

"And as a girl, don't base all your hopes on being just a homemaker. Be prepared to contribute to the family income if it is necessary."

She also listed five "do's":

"Do devote yourself wholeheartedly and constructively to the job.

"Do all you can to improve your skills; learn all you can in the scientific, mathematical and technical fields especially.

"Do find out as soon as you can what you are most interested in, and then go after a job in that field as fast as you can.

Do More

"Do more than your daily job requires. Everyone owes something to his or her community, and to the advancement of his or her profession.

"Do develop an interest in things international, be aware of what is happening in the world around you."

Miss Noyes, a native of Baltimore, began her career at 18, when she became a librarian for a medical society. By the time she was 24, she was account executive and copy writer for a New York agency specializing in pharmaceutical advertising. Then she decided to open her own business, and with Eugene Sproul, another specialist in the same field, formed the Noyes and Sproul agency.

She later married Sproul. The couple now is divorced although the business partnership is going strong. The couple has one child, Barbara, 12.

Miami Interested in Mathieu

Miami University has more than a passing interest in Monessen scatback Maurice Mathieu. A long-distance call from Florida the other day wanted to know if Maurice is still available. (He is!) . . . Incidentally the Miami coaches want Mathieu even though it's apparent the Monessen youngster will never weigh much more than 170. They like his competitive spirit . . . Another recent Monessen High football grad — Frank Zoretich — has apparently decided on Clemson despite an attractive offer from North Carolina. A sharp student, Zoretich is anxious to enter Clemson's famed school of agriculture. He promises to develop into a fine footballer.

No less than seven Pirate baseball games will be carried over DKA-TV in the next several days. This weekend the magic screen will pick up the game at Crosley Field in Cincinnati. On June 29 and 30, the Bucs will play before the TV cameras in Milwaukee. Then on July 4, the Brooklyn contest will be carried. The following weekend, two games from the Polo Grounds in New York will be screened . . . Bob Nichols, former Brownsville High catcher who is now a scout for Baltimore, will conduct the Orioles tryout camp at the Brownie Stadium tomorrow and Saturday.

Basilio to Box in Jeannette

Welterweight champion Carmen Basilio has agreed to box a four round exhibition in Jeannette on June 27 to help stir interest in the outdoor show at McKee Stadium. The main bout will match Reybon Stubbs, of East Liberty, against Wayman Dawson, of Youngstown . . . In Brownsville, a business firm donated a power mower to the Little League to help keep the diamond in trim! . . . Paul Martin, the $30,000 bonus pitcher from Fayette City who quit the Pirates after developing a sore arm, has been signed by the Luzerne Bells in the Fayette County League. However Martin is still undecided about playing because of his ailing arm.

Several Mon Valley League teams are experiencing financial troubles. Baseball expenses are way up these days. It takes more than $30 to stage every game. And that figure doesn't include uniform costs. In New Eagle, manager Frank Furiga has made an appeal for more support to save the long-time MVL entry. A couple of other valley nines just might follow suit . . . Dayton University is still anxious to have Monessen High's battering fullback, Carl Crawley, enroll with the upcoming freshman class.

Sports Columnist Praises Musial

Commenting on Stan Musial's new National League endurance record, noted sports columnist Witney Martin had this to say: "It's the more remarkable because Musial is built along the lines of a thoroughbred race horse, trim and slim and superbly proportioned, rather than along the lines of a Sherman tank. He's as graceful an athlete as we ever saw, with every move a picture, and this splendid coordination undoubtedly has a lot to do with avoiding incapacitating injury, although he takes as many chances as the next man." . . . Penn State's 22-2 baseball record the past season is the best in the school's history, topping the 1921 slate of 22 wins and three losses.

Today's Sports Parade—

Need Jackets Now In Stadium Club

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — The great American pastime passed into limbo today, crushed by a cummerbund and annihilated by an ascot.

From now on gentlemen Emily's Post is destined to become more important in the hits-runs-and-errors industry than the immortal ghost of General Abner Doubleday. Because the days when you went to the ball game in your shirt sleeves are deader than the Washington Senators.

They are, at least, if you plan to go to Yankee Stadium.

Daniel Reed Topping, social and scientific leader of the Bronx 400 made this clear with an edict aimed at the carriage trade which frequents his plush, air-conditioned saloon known as the Stadium Club. Henceforth, jackets will be de rigeur and those without them, jauntily, will be given the bum's rush.

No Hardship Cases

D.T., the tin plate heir with the silver spoon, even refused to consider sportswriters as a hardship case. So they only have one summer sports jacket. On days when it's in the cleaners they must not even use the corridors in the vicinity of the club.

There is a suspicion here that Topping who benefits not a jot as the Sherman Billingsley of the Bronx, has hidden reasons in addition to making a salon out of a saloon.

For years the rest of the American League has been screaming "Break up the Yankees." It being the only major league team with a minor league farm club this is a difficult assignment. So Dan'l possibly has decided to take matters into his own hands on the sartorial front.

This, of course, jeopardizes most of the members of the ball club and they immediately become trade bait.

Zinc Miner's Son

Mickey Mantle, now, is the son of a zinc miner. Heavens to Betsy, Bollingsworth, we just can't keep him!

Yogi Berra's pater worked in a St. Louis brickyard. What will Elsa think of that?

Boo Grim's most immediate ancestor is nortors the owner of a not very chi-chi bistro in, of all places, Brooklyn.

Hank Bauer has got to go. The man is a steam-fitter, whatever that is, in the off-season.

Meanwhile, D.T. and his brain trust have a more pressing problem. The question Murgatroyd, is whether it should be obligatory to wear white tie and tails to night games.

So dust off my tuxedo Teresa I've got to cover the Yankees. But actually, I'm not really upset about the situation.

After all you have to wear jackets in the Cona.

PNA Tops Ravens in City League

PNA got another fine pitching performance from Paul Petrusky last night to earn a 5-2 win over the Ravens in City Softball League action.

Petrusky limited the Birds to seven scattered hits. He issued just one walk.

PNA supported him with errorless ball, turning in a couple of fine defensive plays.

Don Marple and Joe Kurev each had a pair of safeties for the winners.

Nick Staffieri led the Ravens with a double and single.

There will be no game tonight, but City League action will resume tomorrow when the Mayfords will meet Italian Hall in a battle for second place.

Asks for Limit On Baseball's Reserve Clause

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep Torbert MacDonald (D - Mass.), who once played in the New York Yankee farm system, called today for a four-year limit on organized baseball's key reserve clause.

But Minor League President George M. Trautman, echoing the views of baseball Commissioner Ford C. Frick, said any such limit would have a disastrous effect on the national pastime.

Frick, Trautman and MacDonald were among the witnesses scheduled to testify before a House judiciary subcommittee hearing on professional sports legislation.

Frick testified for two hours Wednesday, urging that Congress take no action to jeopardize baseball's presentimmunity from anti-trust laws. He was to be the leadoff witness today.

MacDonald, who captained the Harvard football team in 1940 and later played in the New York Yankee baseball chain, called in his prepared testimony for a modification of the reserve clause.

Under this clause, a baseball player becomes the "property" of the team he first signs with. He can't switch to another club unless he is sold or traded.

MacDonald proposed that if after four years, a major league team hasn't found a place on its roster for the player, he would become a free agent and could negotiate with any other major league club.

Ozarks Bow to Perryopolis, 7-5

Visitors Take Advantage of Walks to Score Valley Win

Perryopolis took advantage of Bruce Pezzelle's wildness to score a 7-5 Mon Valley League win over the Monessen Ozarks at Ninth Street Park last night.

Pezzelle, making his first start for the Ozarks in weeks, held the visitors to seven singles and a three-run homer by Tommy Havadich. However he issued seven walks and that proved his undoing.

Carl Crawley, Ron Danko and Neil Hill all slapped round-trippers to keep Monessen in the game.

Take Lead

The Ozarks took a two-run lead in the first when Danko doubled and Crawley homered him home.

In the second inning, Perry tallied a marker on two walks and a single by Barry Oldham. The Ozarks equalized that score on Danko's second inning circuit clout.

Perry pushed over two more markers in the third on two walks and singles by Havadich and Don Mains.

In their half of the inning, the Ozarks tallied on a walk and single by Mel Clickovich and Neil Hill.

Big Inning

In the fourth, the visitors scored four times to move in front 7-4. Havadich accounted for the runs with a homer blast after a walk, error and single by Herm Sams.

The Ozarks made it close with a run in the fifth on Hill's round-tripper.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Slicing Ball

If you hit the ball just slightly in the heel of the club, you'll lose some distance, and your shot will probably be off some to the left. But if you contact the ball way back in the heel, the ball will take off low and directly left — out under the armpit, so to speak.

Whatever the case, the right elbow getting out and away from the body is the most probable cause. Unless the right elbow is kept in close to the body, INSIDE the right hip, it will be necessary to move this elbow up and out so it can pass around the hip on the downswing. And this changes the plane of the swing.

It is this "out" movement that causes shots hit in the heel of the club. But if it's a cure you're after, keep your elbow tucked in close, and never let it get outside the hip.

Big Field for Flint Tourney

FLINT, Mich. (UP)—A field of more than 150, including all but a handful of the top money winners, teed off today in the opening round of the $37,000 Flint Open.

Doug Ford, the Masters champion and leading money winner with earnings of nearly $30,000 this year, was favored to swell his earnings by another $10,700 in this four-day, 72-hole event.

Actually, the winner's share of the $37,000 pot is only $5,700 but the sponsor has promised an additional $5,000 if any of the three former winners of the tournament claims the title a second time.

Ford is a former winner along with Dow Finsterwald and Julius Boros.

Top "name" golfers missing from the field include U.S. Open champion Dick Mayer, Cary Middlecoff, Ben Hogan, Sam Snead and British Open king Peter Thomson.

Brown Successfully Defend His Crown

By GENE MEAKINS

DENVER, Colo. (UP) — Lightweight champion Joe Brown, radiating confidence after Wednesday night's marathon technical knockout of Cuban challenger Orlando Zulueta, said today he would fight highly-regarded Kenny Lane within 90 days if the National Boxing Association wanted him to.

Brown, starting slowly, rallied powerfully in the final three rounds at Denver Coliseum to smash Zulueta helpless with 21 seconds remaining in the 15th round.

Lou Viscusi, Brown's manager, said the champ would take about a month's rest and then fight some overweight matches. He said he had offers to take Brown to Milwaukee and Houston.

Viscusi said Brown would meet Lane within 90 days and abide by any other requests from the National Boxing Association.

Crowd Looked For Upset

The 28-year-old Zulueta made a good, smart fight of it until the 11th and was ahead on judge Joe Ullmer's card, to the delight of the small crowd of 5,000 who sensed an upset.

But in the 13th round the champion's punches picked up power. He floored Zulueta for a nine count with a left he brought up from below his knees.

Brown knocked Zulueta to the floor again with a right for a count of eight in the 15th. Referee Ray Keech called the bout at 239, with much booing from the crowd.

Brown Ahead On Points

But the scorecards of the two judges and the referee showed the 2-1 favored champion ahead on points after 14 rounds, and Zulueta was plainly in no condition to throw a knockout punch—his only chance to win—in the final seconds.

Zulueta's manager, Hymie Wallman, claimed the referee was "biased." Wallman said his rugged Cuban fighter was "pushed against the ropes and elbowed," and that the referee did not call any fouls against Brown.

"I will not bring any more fighters to Denver because of the judging and refereeing," Wallman said.

Promoter Joe Dupler, discouraged over the gate of $20,000, said he would not promote any more fights in Denver on a guarantee basis. He guaranteed Brown $25,000.

Zulueta got 20 per cent of the gate and the $30,000 television fee —or about $10,000.

School Teacher Sets Pace in Golf Tourney

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Ken Everett, a 39-year-old physical education teacher in a Denver elementary school, shared the spotlight with defending champion Charley Coe and title contender Rex Baxter Jr. today as the Trans-Mississippi Amateur golf tourney hit the second round.

Coe and Baxter are well-known in national and international golf circles and they came through as expected Wednesday as the first round of match play cut the field from 64 to 32 in the championship flight.

But the quiet Colorado schoolteacher, playing in his first Trans-Miss tourney—and that by invitation only since he is normally a public links player — wasn't supposed to win against a formidable foe, Jimmy Powell, a lean Dallas youngster who was a kingpin of the talented North Texas State golf team.

And, it didn't look as if he would win. Everett was five down at the turn, and still four down with four holes to play, when his game caught fire and Powell's fell apart. Everett won the final four holes with two pars and two birdies, then promptly sent the highly-favored Powell to the sidelines with a birdie on the first extra hole.

Coe and Everett were among the so-called "old guard" who moved into today's second round along with more than a dozen college stars and a high school player or two.

Pirates Lose Twin Bill To St. Louis Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates dropped a twi-night double-header to the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night but the real blow to the club came before the action started.

Pirate first baseman Dee Fondy, third ranking hitter in the National League, suffered a broken nose and an injured left eye when struck by a thrown ball during infield practice.

Dr. I. C. Middleman, the Cardinal team physician, said Fondy sustained a hemorrhage in the anteior chamber of the eye and was in considerable pain. The doctor said vision in the eye was limited but the full extent of the injury could not be determined until the pupil is dilated.

Fondy was admitted to Jewish Hospital pending further examination.

The Pirates, listless after the accident were defeated 5-2 and 5-1.

Sam Jones scattered seven hits and struck out 10 in the opener and Lindy McDaniel and Hoyt Wilhelm allowed but six Pirate hits in the nightcap.

Break Tie

The Cards broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning of the first game when Hobie Landrith doubled home Wally Moon. The Pirates had tallied their two runs in the first inning on a pair of walks followed by singles by Gene Baker and Bill Mazeroski.

Stan Musial smashed his 15th home run in the sixth inning of the nightcap, to stretch his hitting streak to 19 games.

Mazeroski batted in the lone Pirate tally in the seventh with a double that scored Frank Thomas.

The Pirates and Cards close out their four-game stand tonight with Luis Arroyo (2-6) or Bob Friend (4-7) slated for Pittsburgh against either Murry Dickson (3-2) or Willard Schmidt (6-1).

Podres Pulls Elbow Tendon

BROOKLYN (UP)—Johnny Podres' arm trouble was diagnosed today as a tendon pull near his elbow, but the Brooklyn Dodgers' southpaw was told that no surgery will be necessary.

Podres, who flew here from Cincinnati two days ago when X-rays showed an inflammation in his left arm, will remain in Brooklyn for heat treatments.

Don Hoak Continues to Haunt Dodgers; Cincinnati Wins, 4-3

By MLTON RICHMAN

The Brooklyn Dodgers can't figure Don Hoak. They gave him his first chance in the big leagues, cut him in for a full World Series share in 1955 when he was with them and did everything they could to make him happy. And now, look at the thanks they're getting.

He blasted a two-run homer Wednesday night that beat the Dodgers, 4-3, and snapped a four-game Cincinnati losing streak.

Only 11 days ago, Hoak belted a two-run homer off Don Drysdale to defeat the Dodgers, 3-1, in the opener of a double-header and then he clouted another home run off Ed Roebuck to help the Redlegs take the nightcap, 3-0.

On May 8 he came up with a three-run circuit blow off Don Newcombe to give Cincinnati a 7-6 triumph.

The Dodgers are hoping he gets lost somewhere.

Hoak's homer Wednesday night came in the seventh inning on the heels of a pinch two-run homer by Bob Thurman. That four-run rally spelled the seventh victory of the season for Tom Acker. Clem Labine was the loser.

Cards Sweep Two

The St. Louis Cardinals climbed to within a half-game of the pace-setting Braves by sweeping a twi-night double-header from Pittsburgh, 5-2 and 5-1, while Milwaukee blanked the Giants, 6-0, and the Cubs beat the Phillies twice, 9-0 and 4-3.

In the American League, the White Sox stayed 2½ games in front with a 3-1 decision over the Orioles; the Yankees crushed the Tigers, 10-2; Kansas City clipped Washington, 6-3, and Boston beat Cleveland, 6-0.

Sam Jones and Lindy McDaniel registered the Cardinals' pair of victories over the Pirates. Jones struck out 10 and pitched a seven-hitter in the opener which was decided in the seventh inning when Joe Cunningham's pinch two-run homer highlighted a three-run rally that snapped a 2-2 tie. The Cards got to Bob Purkey for three runs in the first inning of the nightcap and Stan Musial contributed his 15th homer.

Wes Covington, recently recalled from Wichita, slammed a three-run homer and Hank Aaron hit his 19th with the bases empty as Bob Buhl of the Braves handcuffed the Giants on four hits. Ruben Gomez was the loser.

Rookie Dick Drott of the Cubs held the Phils to three hits in the opener to notch his sixth victory with the aid of homers by Ernie Banks and Chuck Tanner. Walt Moryn smashed two homers in the nightcap, driving in three of the Cubs' four runs. Moe Drabowsky was the winner with help from Turk Lown.

Wildness Costs Orioles

The White Sox took advantage of Art Ceccarelli's wildness to score two runs in the second inning, all they needed, on a pair of walks and run-producing singles by Jim Rivera and Bubba Phillips. Bob Keegan, making his first start since May 31, was the winner although Jack Harshman mopped up.

Gil McDougald and Yogi Berra each hit homers in the Yankees' 15-hit attack against the Tigers. The Yanks clicked off their sixth straight victory behind Tom Sturdivant's eight-hit pitching and at the expense of Duke Maas. Frank House also homered.

The Athletics came up with three runs in the ninth off Russ Kemmerer for their victory over Washington. Reliever Virgil Trucks drove in the tie-breaking run with a single and Billy Martin then followed with his second homer for the A's since coming from the Yankees last Saturday. Jim Lemon and Hal Smith also homered.

Home runs by Jim Piersall and Sammy White, coupled with a five-hit pitching performance by Frank Sullivan, enabled the Red Sox to snap a four-game losing streak at the expense of the Indians. Mike Garcia gave up Boston's first five runs and was the loser.

Sporstmen's Corner—

Dams Pose Problem For Spawning Salmon

There's an interesting battle waging these days in Tacoma, Wash., between fish conservationists and contractors for a huge dam on the Cowlitz River.

At the moment, work on the dam has been halted by a court ruling. It seems the dam will prevent $17 million worth of spawning salmon from swimming upstream.

On the other hand, the dam is needed to provide additional electrical power for the rapidly growing city.

In an effort to solve the problem, the electrical industry is testing several devices to get the fish up stream and over the dam.

Three devices are now in use, but none is completely practical.

One is a fish ladder. Unhappily fish are often unable to find the ladder. When the salmon hit the turbulence below the dam, they are driven by an innate compulsion to swim upstream. Eventually they tire and drift toward the banks.

Pressure Lift

A second device is a pressure lift. It is an inclined tube-like structure running down into a cage of water. Fish enter the cage. Periodically water is sucked up the tube, carrying fish with it, discharging them above the dam.

A third method is an elevator device, in which the fish are lifted periodically in a cage.

All three methods are expensive. And it's difficult to attract the salmon to them. In some cases, sound waves have been tried as "fish guilders."

Moreover, there's still the problem of getting the fish back down after they spawn. Spilling them over the dam into turbine blades increases mortality.

Get Fish Back

Two methods are being used to get the fish back. One is a "skimmer" in which strong currents attract the fish into a gadget which later lowers them beyond the dam.

The other is a ski shoot which carries the fish safely beyond the spillway base and the turbine blades.

Salmon may fall 300 feet with virtually no mortality if they hit a deep pool.

The commercial side accents the Tacoma problem. Annual production of salmon in the district amounts to about 28,628,000 pounds with a value of more than $17,

Frightened Cubs—

Sometimes the inhumanity of thrill-seeking humans discourages Game Protector Vern VanOrder, whose district is in Elk County.

"He reports:

"Early in May I received frantic calls from people who said that when four bear cubs, in a tree along Route 255, attempted to come down to join their mother someone grabbed at them or threw sticks, forcing them back up.

"At the scene I found about 300 persons jammed right up to the tree. Autos and people completely blocked the highway. The cubs (each the size of a volley ball) were about 20 feet above ground, crying to beat the band. The worried mother bear was back on the hillside, in sight but fortunately not showing too much anger.

"I succeeded in shaming the people into moving a short distance from the tree. (When women are present the suggestion that babies should not be separated from their mother has quite an effect.)

"After the people moved, three of the cubs climbed down and joined their mother. I watched the fourth until dark but he stayed in the tree. However he was gone when I returned the next morning."

Fans Hope to Give Stobbs Luck

WASHINGTON (UP) — All of Washington will dig up good luck charms Friday night when the Senators hard-luck left hander, Chuck Stobbs, will attempt to break his 16-game losing streak extending over two seasons, against the Cleveland Indians.

The whole thing started as a gag when the Washington publicity department decided to give out a rabbit's foot to each of the first 1,000 cash clients. Since then, the thing has snowballed until Stobbs is neck-deep in charms, amulets, voodoo drums, four-leaf clovers, lucky coins and medals.

There are more than one million stutterers in the United States.

Legislative Committee Reports Findings in Pardons Board Probe

HARRISBURG (UP)—A special legislative committee has reported that it was unable to determine if "political or personal influences" affected decisions of the state Pardons Board in clemency cases over the years.

The finding was the highlight of a report submitted to the Legislature Wednesday night by a six-member committee that held 11 weeks of public hearings into Republican campaign charges in 1956 that such influences swayed the board in some cases.

The 32-page report presented a long list of recommendations for strengthening the structure of the board and its procedures, including a proposed change in membership.

"The committee finds that through the years there have been what appears to be attempts to use political or personal influence on members of various Pardons Boards," the report said. "The committee is unable to state what effect, if any, these attempts have had upon the decisions of any particular board."

Much of the report was devoted to the controversial case of David Darcy, whose death sentence after numerous unsuccessful appeals through the courts was commuted to life imprisonment last September by Gov. George M. Leader upon the board's recommendation.

Darcy, Harold Foster and Harry Zeitz, were convicted of killing a bystander during a Bucks County tavern holdup in 1947.

Impact Unknown

The committee said that in that case also while there were "apparent attempts" to use political and personal influence, it could not determine the impact on the board.

Matthew H. McCloskey, Philadelphia contractor and national and state Democratic finance head, a key witness at the public hearings, had testified he talked to each member of the all Democratic board separately and asked them to read an opinion of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the Darcy case "because of my interest in the case...I just took the bull by the horns and handed it to them."

Genevieve Blatt, Democratic State Committee secretary and a board member, testified that McCloskey visited her at Harrisburg and gave her a copy of the decision. Two other board members, former Attorney General Herbert B. Cohen and Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman said they did not recall McCloskey giving them a copy.

"The committee leaves it up to the General Assembly to draw its own conclusions from the above testimony as to whether or not the Pardons Board members were influenced in arriving at their decision," the committee said.

A major recommendation was that a proposed constitutional revision group be created to make a thorough study of the problems involved in the structure of the board, and to come up with findings designed to lessen the possibility of political influence.

Submit Own Proposal

Two Republican committee members, Reps. Edwin W. Tompkins (Cameron), chairman, and Rep. Clarence D. Bell (Delaware) recommended the membership be changed to include the lieutenant governor, one appointee of the chief justice of the state Supreme Court, one appointed by the president judge of the state Superior Court, and two appointees of the governor.

However, while the report was being completed the state Senate adopted and sent to the House for concurrence a proposal for a five-member board, including the lieutenant governor and four others to be appointed by the governor, one to be "learned in the law."

Other committee recommendations included:

—All decisions of the board to be considered in executive session and not by "round-robin" letters or inter-office communication.

—No hearing, rehearing or hearing on special listing to be held unless "due public notice" is given.

—Papers relating to any case, including letters, records of telephone calls and personal visits to board members and the governor and petitions on behalf of an applicant be kept open to public inspection.

—Filing of all cases of reasons for refusal of clemency for the guidance of future boards.

—No rule of procedure except where the death penalty has been imposed shall be suspended or revised without 90 days public notice.

—The board to have a staff of its own to investigate and verify allegations and representations made on behalf of an applicant.

—That favorable action in clemency cases should be recommended "on merit only...extreme care should be exercised that no recommendation be made from any personal or political consideration, nor founded upon any favoritism."

—The Pardons Board at all times "should be, and remain, an agency of mercy, and not an agency of general jail release."

The report, which was interspersed with varying opinions by Republican and Democratic members, did not touch on commutations granted several former Erie officials involved in that city's 1954 bribery scandal and which the committee reviewed in the course of public hearings.

Probers Hope to End Bakery Investigation

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate investigators hoped to end their investigation of the Bakery Workers Union today by turning the heat on President James G. Cross about his reported loans from an employer.

Cross was orderedback to the stand this afternoon after as much as telling the Labor Rackets Committee Wednesday it had no business asking what "personal services" he received from an attractive brunette who had a habit of showing up at his hotel at union conventions across the country.

He said her name was Mrs. Kay Lower, that she was a secret organizer for the union in Los Angeles and that she was paid for her services to the union.

Has Police Record

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Mrs. Lower, also known as Mrs. Elsie K. Thorpe, had a record of arrests in Los Angeles for offering prostitution and living in a house of ill fame.

When Cross was asked if Mrs. Lower rendered any "personal service or accommodation" to him apart from union business, he told the committee the question was "not pertinent" to its investigation of labor racketeering.

The committee did not challenge this stand, which was apparently based on a Supreme Court ruling last Monday that congressional committees cannot engage in "exposure for exposure's sake" but must have a clear purpose for their questions.

Claims Expenses Honest

The committee charged that Cross, who was paid $17,500 last year, also drew more than $39,000 in expenses, much of it for "entertainment" not otherwise accounted for. Cross said all the money was honestly spent.

The committee planned to question Cross further about charges that he borrowed a total of $106,000 since 1948 from Martin Philipsborn Sr. of Zion, Ill., and his brother Herbert Philipsborn—and that the union tried to maintain a sub-standard contract this year for 125 of its members who work for Zion Industries Inc., Philipsborn's bakery and candy factory.

Kennedy said some of the loans paid for a home for Cross in Washington and another in Palm Beach, Fla.

Canada's Coal Imports Off

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (UP) — The Anthracite Institute reported today that sales of stove size coal and exports to Canada have dropped off considerably in recent months.

The Institute, in their monthly bulletin, attributed both declines to the unusually warm Canadian weather during the past winter. They explained that Canada buys more stove size than any of our states except New York and absorbs 24 per cent of the total.

They said that the past winter was so relatively mild that Canadian dealers and consumers probably have coal left over. The last six months of 1956-57 showed a decline from 1955-1956 of 330,904 tons of all sizes.

The Institute added that while exports of anthracite to countries other than Canada during April were slightly below the March total, they were nearly doubled from April of last year.

Plenty of Ice Cream Is 'Must' in Summer Time

By EDITH M. BARBER

Those of us fortunate enough to have freezing compartments in our refrigerators wonder how we ever got along without them. For years after an automatic refrigerator had replaced the icebox, we were so well satisfied that we hardly thought of any further convenience.

Edith Barber

Most of us found it difficult, however, to keep ice cream on hand, even when we sacrificed one of the ice trays for this purpose. Now this problem has been completely solved, as cartons of ice cream will remain firm — sometimes we feel, too firm — until we decide to have ice cream for dessert.

Often, several flavors are kept on hand so that the members of the family can have a choice. Most of us like one of these vanilla, as with this we can have so many variations. Portions may be sprinkled with coconut or almonds and served with a sauce. Chocolate and butterscotch are most commonly used even in berry season. Maraschino cherries, a glass jar of which is convenient to keep on hand, make an attractive garnish especially as they come in two shades — red and green.

An interesting sauce can be prepared from the syrup, thickened slightly. A tang can be given by flavoring with lemon or lime juice.

ICE CREAM SPECIAL

1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons lime or lemon juice
½ cup maraschino cherry juice and water
1 tablespoon sugar
1 egg white, well beaten
¼ to ½ cup maraschino cherries

Beat egg yolk. Mix 2 tablespoons sugar and flour, and stir into egg yolk. Stir in the liquids and continue stirring over low heat until sauce thickens slightly. Add remaining tablespoon sugar to beaten egg white and fold in the cooked mixture. Stir in cherries and chill. Yield: 4 servings.

Frozen Foods Must Be Kept Solidly Frozen

Frozen foods are being featured more and more in menus. It would seem as if the buyer would have no responsibility for choosing them at the market. This is not the truth. Homemakers, as well as retailers, distributors and processors, must take some responsibility.

Many processors have direct relations with the growers, who, naturally, are anxious to produce the quality products demanded. The methods of preparation and freezing in the plants must be of the best, as must be storage in the freezing rooms. Delivery to the retailers must not be delayed when the foods arrive, as they must go immediately in the store freezers.

Consumers should make sure all the foods they buy are still in the solid frozen state. This can easily be done by the touch test. They should be the last purchases to go into the market basket or, preferably into an insulated freezer bag. If one has forgotten to take freezer bag, a double paper will be furnished, but there should be little delay in getting the food to the home kitchen.

There, unless it is to be used for the next meal, it should go into the freezing compartment of the refrigerator until just before it is to be used. According to the recommendations of the American Home Economics Association, the above suggestions should be followed if quality of frozen foods is to be maintained.

2 tablespoons flour
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Deputy Secretary Of Labor Resigns

Cottage Cheese Popular for Summer Meals

Dairy Month can be celebrated in other ways besides that of using milk as a beverage. In fact, milk itself may be replaced by one of its products, cheese. While butter is, of course, another, and one that is used largely, it does not have the same nutrients as milk and cheese.

Cottage cheese has been a staple in the diet for centuries. It was easy to make in the household, where it was favored for a number of reasons. Because it was practically a solid, the grown-ups preferred it to milk itself. It was also appreciated because its keeping qualities — even without refrigeration — were good. Some felt the flavor was improved by keeping, although of course not long, even in a cool springhouse.

On old-fashioned tables, cottage cheese almost always appeared on the table with the pickles and the preserves as an accessory to the main portion of the meal. Today, people like it in or with salads. It may be offered with an appetizer tray and is very good with berries or other fruits.

When used on the appetizer tray or with salads, one sometimes likes to flavor it with minced onion or chives or other herbs. Occasionally mix it with orange juice and a touch of lemon juice and sweeten the mixture to have it take the place of both salad and dessert. Larger fruits, fresh or canned, may be stuffed with the cheese. In summertime, cottage cheese is a nutritive addition to the salad meal we often plan for warm weather.

When a plane hits supersonic speed, its speed is measured by the prefix Mach. Mach was the name of Ernst Mach, a Czech-born German physicist who contributed to the study of sound.

Oranges Provide Basis for Many Dessert Recipes

Just now, when both California and Florida oranges are seedless — or practically so — and when the pulp is so sweet and firm, folks are inclined to use oranges whole or halved for breakfast and sectioned for use as an ingredient or as an accessory. The children and some adults like to pull off the skin, to pull the sections apart and eat their fruit this way. Others like to cut each orange with a sharp knife into quarters or eighths.

Large oranges may be halved before a knife is run between the pulp and the skin and prepared in the same manner as grapefruit. A California recipe for orange muffins has both an interesting texture and flavor. The former is supplied by the finely cut pulp which in combination with nuts produces a muffin suitable for dessert at lunch or for the Sunday breakfast table.

An old-fashioned dessert that has been favored through the years is an orange custard pudding. For this, a rather thick soft custard is prepared and chilled. Orange sections are arranged in a glass bowl and just before serving, the chilled custard is poured over them. This is one of my favorite desserts, as you may have noticed, as it is used every so often on that weekly menu.

ORANGE MUFFINS

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking pwder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup brown sugar
1 egg, well beaten
¾ cup milk
2 oranges, peeled and cut fine
¼ cup chopped nuts
1-3 cup melted shortening
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Sift flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and ½ cup brown sugar together. Combine egg, milk, orange pieces, nuts and melted shortening. Add to dry ingredients all at once and stir until just mixed. Fill greased muffin pans 2-3 full. Mix 2 tablespoons sugar and the cinnamon together and sprinkle over top of each muffin. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 25 to 30 minutes. Serve hot with honey. Yield: 8 muffins.

DESSERT CUSTARD

4 egg yolks, slightly beaten
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk, scalded
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Combine slightly beaten egg yolks, sugar, and salt in top of double boiler. Add hot milk slowly and stir until sugar is dissolved. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly. When mixture coats a metal spoon, remove at once from hot water and place pan in cold water to cool quickly. Add vanilla extract and chill. Pour over sectioned oranges or drained canned fruit. If desired, the egg whites may be used for meringue to top the dessert.

Ale differs from beer in having a lighter color, a smaller proportion of hops and a higher alcohol content.

People Are Spending Billions on Weather

NEW YORK (UP)—Americans will spend more than $3,500,000,000 this year to show that times have changed since Mark Twain remarked that people always talk about the weather but don't DO anything about it.

This huge expenditure some 300 million dollars greater than in 1956, will go for air conditioning the nation's homes, churches, stores, office buildings, factories and places of recreation.

In the past 20 years the amount of money spent to do something about the weather has skyrocketed 6,000 per cent.

Boom Just Beginning

"We've just tapped the market for air conditioning," Cloud Wampler, chairman of Carrier Corp., told the United Press. "Within five years the industry's annual volume will be around five billion dollars."

In many segments of the economy, and in the warmer areas of the country, air conditioning no longer is looked upon as a luxury.

Industry leaders pointed out that competition for employes is so keen that companies are turning to air conditioning as an extra selling feature.

Demand A Problem

D. C. Minard, president of the Trane Co., said the industry's biggest problem in the next decade will be "keeping pace with demand."

"The potential is certainly inviting, not only in new construction, but in the modernization of existing buildings as well," he said. "Today it is almost unthinkable that anyone would put up a modern office building or hotel without having it air conditioned."

The industry also is developing new markets making special heat transfer devices and cooling equipment for atomic reactors, electronic equipment and jet and rocket engines.

THREE DOESN'T LOOK A CROWD — Elizabeth Taylor's former husband, Michael Wilding (left), greets her and her current husband, Mike Todd, at the airport in Nice, France. Liz, who is expecting a baby, and Todd were leaving the Riviera, where they had been since April.

Many Catholics Make 'Decisions', Graham Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—More than 1,000 of the 20,046 persons who have made decisions for Christ" after hearing Billy Graham's Madison Square Garden sermons have been Roman Catholics, it was learned today.

A spokesman for the Billy Graham New York Crusade told the United Press that speaking very, very conservatively, at least one in every 20 inquirers' have been Catholics."

More than half the Roman Catholics who have made decisions" have indicated they wish to affiliate with some Protestant denomination, the spokesman said.

The remainder for the most part have simply said that making decisions for Christ will help them become better Catholics," according to the spokesman.

Catholics have been warned by some priests that mere attendance at a Graham sermon is forbidden by church doctrine.

Serious Floods Ravage Red China

TOKYO (UP)—The worst floods in recent history ravaged seven provinces on the China mainland last year, Communist China disclosed for the first time today.

Peiping carried reports of the floods when they occurred last year but maintained they were kept under control. A statement broadcast by Radio Peiping admitted today the floods were far more serious than its previous reports indicated.

TV Is Blessing to The Home Decorator

CHICAGO (UP) — Television, long a bane to movie makers and book publishers, is a blessing to the home accessory industry.

Home decorators, in Chicago for the 1957 summer home furnishings market review, said television sells furniture because it keeps people home.

"Up until the last two years all decorations were secondary in the home," said Sandy Rankin of "Accessories for Interiors," but the tremendous outbreak of TV has made homes more important."

"The customers now insist on wall decorations," he said, "and will spend more money on better quality goods. They want permanency in their accessories, and pieces that can fit into every type of decor."

Stress Modern, Unusual

"Accessories for interiors" stresses the modern and unusual, as shown in clocks shaped like lyres, old-fashioned bed-warmers, horseshoes, or abstracts.

One unique timepiece is built into a "samisen," or sacred Japanese guitar. Painted strips of parchment, slim and delicate, also show the Oriental influence.

Arnold Nathan, sales manager for Turner Wall Accessories of Chicago, said television has caused a desire for vivid color and ornateness in home decoration.

"People want to see something colorful and relaxing when they look away from their TV screen," he said. "Walls can no longer be cold and bare."

"Ornate frame mirrors are coming back," he said. "All glass mirrors, after a ten-year run in popularity, are dying out on the market."

Knickknack shelves, and council tables also follow the trend toward elaboracy, he said.

More daring and artistic-minded home decorators will find the answer to their needs in products such as those made by Raymore, a New York designing company.

"People are going in for the bizarre," said a Raymore salesman, indicating a bright red ashtray several feet wide and several inches thick, and a two-foot-high salt shaker.

Raymore accessories are predominantly mobile — dangling lamps, clocks, flower pots, and pictures. Ceramics were noticeable, formed into anything from a table top to a liquor bottle.

Reading Strike Is Approved

CLEVELAND (UP)—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Tuesday authorized a strike by 750 engineers against the Reading Railroad next Monday unless agreement is reached on safety measures.

Grand Chief Engineer Guy L. Brown said membership of the brotherhood favored a strike by 97.6 per cent in a vote taken three weeks ago.

The brotherhood said the railroad has refused to give favorable consideration to any of the agreement rules sought by the union.

The engineers are seeking: prompt repairs on locomotives emitting toxic gases into operating compartments; removal of unsafe appliances that interfere with engineers' vision from cabs, and adequate protection from exposure to cold, rain, sleet and snow while operating locomotives in yard service.

Scavenger Cells Given Boost By So-called 'Miracle Drugs'

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP) — A newly learned trick in body chemistry rouses the defenders against disease after they've been laid very low—which is not only a very neat trick but one which has life-saving possibilities for people.

These defenders are our scavenger cells, the phagocytes, which consume and digest foreign substances that could sicken and end up killing us if those phagocytes weren't both efficient and exceeding'y devoted to duty.

Ordinarily there is peaceful coexistence if not chief cooperation between them and the potent chemicals which come out of the adrenal glands — cortisone and its related hormones.

That goes, too, for their relations with hormones of other glands, especially those which, depending upon the abundance of production, are responsible for characteristic contours and features of men and women.

Bodily things that were that way until it was discovered that when the body's normal supply of cortisone was increased from the outside, the effect upon inflammatory processes, like arthritis was like magic.

Cortisone and its chemical derivatives become "miracle drugs." Chemists learned how to make them in factories, and so suffering mankind was no longer dependent on animal bodies as sources of supply.

Then it was discovered that in some people (not in all people, mind) heavy doses over a considerable time had the phagocytes very low. With the body defenders stymied, infections got going at a galloping pace.

Tuberculosis for instance. And pneumonia. Sickening bacteria which had been held in check by busy little phagocytes, suddenly became like the avalanche and an inflammatory process was reversed but the patient died.

That made cortisone and its derivatives, chemicals worthy of the most profound respect. They remained "miracle drugs" in the full sense of the word—but then use became matters for high skill and keen vigilance.

Now, comes the trick learned by two biochemists T. Nicol and D. L. J. Bibby, of King's College, London. They took a laboratory-manufactured report chemically speaking of one of the hormones manufactured in abundance by female bodies, which assist in making women feminine.

With techniques too complicated here, they found out what was the normal phagocytic activity in the bodies of mice while mice. The average phagocyte activity index was 26.

Some of the mice were injected daily with heavy doses of cortisone for one week. Their phagocyte activity index sank to 7, which was more than enough to put them in grave peril from any infection which might be around.

Then they were injected daily with the synthetic female hormone, and their phagocyte activity index went up to 46—that is well above what it had been before there was any interference with their body chemistry.

Some mice were not injected with cortisone but were with the female hormone. Their index went up from the normal 26 to 105 which—in the dry words of the scientists — "indicated marked stimulation of phagocytic activity."

The next step is to find out if what happened in mouse chemistry will happen in human chemistry. The scientists suggested it in their report in the technical journal, "Nature."

SALLY'S SALLIES

"A bomber pilot, you say? Am I his target for tonight??"

Calls A-tests Safe

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The present rate of atomic weapon testing does not present a serious problem and those who have called for an end to A-bomb tests are "ignoring the facts," according to Dr. W. H. Langham a member of the staff of the Los Alamos (N.M.) Scientific Laboratory.

In a speech to the annual meeting of the Health Physics Society, Dr. Langham, who heads a committee studying biological effects of atomic radiation, said last night that if tests were continued at the current rate for the next 60 years, the amount of radioactive strontium released by the bombs would reach only three-fourths of the present safety level.

"Surely in 60 years we can get this cold war and atomic weapons race over with," he said. "Let's hope we don't have to continue more than 30 years."

Dr. Langham criticized "scientists who have turned politicians" to campaign for an end to A-bomb tests and particularly cited Dr. Linus C. Pauling, Nobel Prize chemist and leader of the anti-test drive.

The Los Alamos scientist said that "many of our petition signers are making noises about leukemia" being caused by fallout from A-bomb tests.

He said they "ignore the fact" that no one has proved that radioactive strontium, chief threat in fallout, can produce leukemia.

Dr. Langham said strontium does attack bone salt, but not the marrow where leukemia originates. He said strontium can cause bone cancer, but added that the amount resulting from atom tests is so tiny that it could not possibly produce any serious effects in humans even if the test were carried on 100 years.

Lightning Kills Two Guardsmen At Fort Bragg

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (UP)—Two bolts of lightning in the midst of a violent electrical storm struck Wednesday in a bivouac area, killing two North Carolina National Guardsmen and wounding 47 others.

The men, members of North Carolina's 30th Infantry Division, were preparing for supper at the time of the accident. The "Old Hickory" division, some 8,000 strong, had gone to the bivouac area Monday at the beginning of their second week of active duty training.

None of the injured men is in serious condition. They were expected to be released after treatment at the Army hospital here. Names of the men and their regiments were withheld pending notification of the next of kin.

To Extend Tax Deadline

HARRISBURG (UP)—Legislation to extend the deadline for the equalization of county real estate assessments to Jan. 1, 1959 has been approved by the Legislature and sent to Gov. George M. Leader.

The measure extends the privilege outright to seventh and eighth class counties and conditionally to the remaining counties affected by the 1951 law.

The other counties must have begun work on the new assessment system to qualify for the extension.

Sen. George B. Stevenson (R-Clinton) said "outside of five or six" seventh and eighth class counties, Northumberland is the only county which has not made a start on the uniform records system. He said even Northumberland County can qualify for the extension if it initiates the work before Jan. 1, 1958.

Stevenson said when the law was originally put through "we felt we would be lucky if the change could be effected within eight years."

The January, 1959 date will mark the end of that eight year deadline.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, John Matis who died two years ago today, June 20, 1955

The rolling stream of life rolls on
But still the vacant chair
Is filled by love, the voice the smile
Of one who once sat there
Someone more without you,
We tread the weary way,
Life is not the same to us,
Since you were called away
Sadly missed by Wife, Children and Families

'Airmailed' Letters Get To Destination

NEW YORK (UP) — A 9-year-old apartment-dwelling girl who "airmailed" a number of unaddressed pen-pal letters out a fifth-floor window has received several answers—one from Rangoon, Burma.

Home with a cold last April 24, Janet Capron wrote several letters, addressed only to "Dear Somebody," asking that the recipients answer them. She then tossed the letters out the window.

The first reply came from a soldier at Fort Sill, Okla. He said he knew what it was like not to receive letters, then gave some friendly advice to little Miss Capron.

The letter from Rangoon began:

"As I was sitting down under a palm tree in front of my home at sundown one evening, your letter came blowing into my lap—driven by the first monsoon winds.

"Are you pretty? How old are you?" asked the writer, who said he did not read English well and that the letter was being written for him by an uncle.

It turned out however, that the post office had aided Janet and the law of gravitation in the dispatch of the letters to Fort Sill and Rangoon. Not to mention a man named David B. Magee

Magee, a neighbor of the Caprons, found several of the letters on the ground. To cheer the child, he mailed them to a soldier brother at Fort Sill and to another brother with the U.S Information Agency in Burma. He asked that they reply or pass the letter along to someone who would.

Actor Given Jail Sentence

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Actor Anthony Franciosa today planned to appeal a 10-day jail sentence handed him by a municipal judge for assaulting a newspaper photographer.

Judge Mark Brandler Wednesday sentenced the actor, recently married to actress Shelley Winters, to 90 days in jail but suspended the sentence on condition that the defendant spend 10 days in jail, pay a $250 fine in addition to paying for the repair of the photographer's camera.

Franciosa had pleaded guilty to knocking down and kicking photographer Bill Walker last April 19 The attack occurred when Walker attempted to take a picture of Franciosa as he left the courthouse with Miss Winters.

Five Members Of School Board Resign Posts

RIDGWAY, Pa. (UP) — Elk County Court faced the task today of finding a new school board for Benzinger Twp as the result of the mass resignation of the five members

The school directors and the secretary of the board quit in a body effective July 1, saying they had been subject to criticism as the result of a ruling by state school authorities that 400 St. Marys Central Catholic High School could not ride the public school buses.

The board had permitted the parochial school pupils to use the buses until April 1, when it was found that the practice was a violation of school law.

Turning in their resignations were Mrs. Elizabeth Simons, president, members William Miller, Ben Kreller, Amos Pantzer and Walter A. Schaut, and Mrs. Betty Rother, secretary.

Two Seamen Killed On Aircraft Carrier

By DAWSON S. OPPENHEIMER

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UP) — Live steam set loose by an exploding high speed pump aboard the aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt killed two seamen and seriously burned five others, the Navy said today.

The Navy said 29 other seamen were treated for heat prostration or exhaustion from being trapped or from heroic rescue work as the steam jetted though deck after deck of the 45,000-ton carrier Wednesday.

Capt. T. W. Hopkins, skipper of the big flattop, told newsmen a harrowing account of the tragedy and a stirring account of heroism in an interview after the FDR docked this morning.

"The casualties were due to live steam," Hopkins said. "Both men who were killed apparently were on their way to help the two men on duty in the pump room at the time of the explosion."

The carrier, about 100 miles off the Florida coast at the time, was brought to the Navy carrier basin at Mayport, Fla., near here.

A Navy board of investigation was convened immediately to determine the cause of the explosion and the extent of the damage to the huge carrier.

Dead, Injured Identified

The dead were identified as boiler tender 3-c Bobby E. Hyder, 22, of Spartanburg, S.C., and Fireman Sidney R. Wall, 27, Norwood, N.C.

The seriously injured included:

Boiler tender-fireman Donald E. Brockman, 20, of Ringgold, Ga.

Fireman apprentice Philip R. Plantier, 19, Wauregan, Conn.

Boiler tender Richard M. Haigh, Washington, S.D.

Fireman apprentice Robert J. Radke, 19, Everett, Wash.

Captive Whale Has Bad Case Of Spring Fever

PALOS VERDES ESTATES, Calif. (UP)—Marineland officials today ordered a vast search in the Pacific Ocean to find and capture a lover for Bubbles.

Bubbles has a bad case of spring fever. The spawning season has started and the 14-foot globioephala soammoni (pilot whale) wants a mate.

Bubbles was captured last February off the Southern California coast and placed in a large tank at the Oceanarium here. The lovesick Bubbles is the world's only captive whale.

"She won't eat her daily ration of 60 pounds of squid anymore," William F. Monahan, vice president of Marineland, said. "She just nibbles on anchovies and gazes longingly toward the Pacific."

Frank Brocato, captain of the Oceanarium's collecting boat, Geronimo, was given a whale of a task. He was ordered to sea and reminded that Bubbles would remain sad unless he returned with her romeo.

The Liberty Bell in Philadelphia's Independence Hall cracked in 1835 when it tolled at the funeral procession of Chief Justice John Marshall of the United States Supreme court.

Peggy Lee Is Free to Spend Time Writing

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP)—Peggy Lee winding up her third week on the Gleasonless Jackie Gleason program, is free now to turn to her own pet project — a musical TV show and writing.

"We've been working on a format for a TV show for a year," said the silver-blonde singer, "and it's just been one thing after another.

William Ewald

"We had one format that was partly dramatic, but we decided to throw that out. And then we had another format that put me in a bar setting, but somebody decided it might not be such a hot idea for a girl to do a series in a bar.

Miss Lee, who'll host the Gleason CBS-TV show this Saturday, after acting as guest vocalist for two weeks, is convinced TV is heading into a new cycle.

Music On Rise

"Music seems to be on the next turn of the wheel," she said. "Perry (Como) has shown how successful a singer can be on TV. And, of course, there's Dinah (Shore) too. Music is coming back.

"Still, I don't think there's any doubt that the singer works under a handicap on TV. They haven't completely solved the problem of sound yet and there's too much attention paid to all those props they feel they have to set up around a singer.

TV has developed very few singers of its own and Miss Lee thinks she knows why. "The trouble is," she said, "TV is not a place for beginners. It's no place to get experience. There's just too much to learn.

"Most of the big singers of today started with bands, traveled on the road, got their experience the hard way. And I'd advise any kid today who wanted to become a singer to get that kind of work in — even if it means singing in joints."

Miss Lee herself is becoming more interested in writing than singing. She writes poetry and songs.

One of her present tasks is expanding "New York City Ghost," a poem she wrote four years ago which Victor Young set to music. She hopes to fatten it into a TV spectacular. She has written about 100 songs over the past 14 years and some have sold pretty well—"Manana," "It's A Good Day" and "I Don't Know Enough About You."

'Miss Monitor' Likes Her Job As Weather Girl

NEW YORK (UP) — Miss Tedi Thurman is a cute gal who delivers the weather patter on NBC Radio's "Monitor." She has been known as "Miss Monitor" since June, 1955, when the weekend show was uncorked.

While most weather - spielers deal in prediction, Miss Thurman goes them one better. She deals in promise.

"Well, yes, there is a kind of sex in my voice, I suppose," said Tedi as she dipped her eyelashes to half-mast. "Southern girls generally have sexier voices. They have a kind of languid quality. They're not in a hurry...know what I mean?"

Still, confessed Miss Thurman, the South does not have a monopoly on sexy cities. "Almost all the cities are a little sexy," she said. "But some are more sexy than others."

"Now, you take M-i-n-n-e-a-p-o-l-is. . .a lovely sound. You can give it lots of breath. You can give it lots more inflection than you can, say Newark or Detroit. Los Angeles is another sexy name. Generally, if you can string the name out, it sounds more sexy.

"The same thing goes for numbers. A temperature of '50' is not nearly as sexy as '49' or '79.' And, of course, '102' is the end."

Conditions vary, too, said Miss Thurman. "A very unsexy condition is 'clear,'" she pointed out. "What can you do with 'clear'? But 'fog' is a wonderful word and I just love 'thunderstorm.'

"'Partly cloudy' I like better than 'cloudy.' I don't know whether it's sexier, it's just that it gives me more to say."

How to Make Sure You Get Enough Milk

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

You can drink your milk and eat it, too! I do, every day.

For years all of you have been bombarded with advice about the value of milk. By this time I'm sure you are aware that adults should have at least one pint a day expectant mothers require two pints and children should have a minimum of one and one-half to two pints per day.

While no single food supplies all the nutrients we need, milk comes closer than any other.

It gives us calcium for strong bodies and numerous vitamins, minerals and protteins which we need constantly to replenish dwindling supplies.

There are dozens of ways of getting this daily milk quota.

Drinking several glassfuls, of course, is the easiest and surest way. But not everyone is that fond of milk. Also, you may not always find the opportunity to drink milk.

Therefore, some of you have to consume your milk in a different manner — in cooked foods, on cereals, ice cream, pudding and the like.

But even so, how many of you actually get your mild requirements day in and day out? I do and let me tell you how.

You see, I get an extra milk bonus every morning.

Like just about everyone else, I pour milk over my oatmeal — and I have oatmeal for every breakfast, winter and summer. In addition, I sprinkle a tablespoonful of powdered milk on top of the oatmeal. Or I shake the same amount of powdered milk into my orange juice.

This powdered milk actually is the "heart of the milk." It retains most of the original milk values like calcium, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, protein, lactose and minerals. The single spoonful provides about a 15 per cent bonus of these important ingredients.

The only thing lacking is the fat content and vitamin A. I make up the vitamin A with other foods. As for the fat, most of us in the middle and upper age bracket can do without it.

The older you get, the less fat you need. But sufficient milk is important every day of your life.

Blames Chinese for Opium Trade

By ROBERT F. COLL

WASHINGTON (UP) — Federal Narcotics Commissioner Harry J. Anslinger said today that Red China is responsible for more than half of the illicit world traffic in opium.

Anslinger, who also heads the United Nation's Commission on Narcotics Drugs, said the U.N. has received evidence of "enormous" shipments of opium from the Chinese mainland comprising 65 per cent of the world traffic.

He said the Chinese Reds are "not making any effort" to halt the shipments. In fact, he said, the Chinese Nationalists believe the Communists are using the illicit trade to finance purchases of strategic material."

The Middle East, he said, is the second chief source of the illegal traffic.

Opium Pipe Curiosity

Anslinger said in an interview that the illegal narcotics traffic in this country now is greatest in New York, California, Illinois, Michigan and Texas.

He said most of the nation's 50,000 "users" take heroin, an opium derivative, by hypodermic needle. The traditional opium pipe has become a curiosity.

He said there has been a sharp drop in the narcotics traffic in Ohio and Hawaii. He attributed this to stricter laws and a "get tough" attitude by judges in sentencing peddlers.

Much of the opium reaching the United States, he said, is smuggled through San Francisco from Red China by way of Burma, Thailand and Hong Kong. Supplies also come in from Lebanon.

Acting Alone

Anslinger said Red China appears to be acting alone, since Russia and her European satellites have been "most cooperative" in helping to stamp out the illicit traffic.

He said a recently - complete U.N. survey also uncovered a "very mysterious" new sex stimulant called khat that is chewed by African natives. It also disclosed a new Hong Kong practice of "chasing the dragon" in inhaling opium vapors, he said.

In addition to Red China, the other principal growers of opium —an essential in drug manufacture—are Russia, Turkey, Yugoslavia, and India.

A big headache for the world organization is marijuana — also known as cannabis or hashish in other parts of the world. The weed will grow almost anywhere and can be used commercially as hemp, further complicating its control.

Tanker's Hulk Still Burning; 12 Are Killed

BREST, France (UP) — The abandoned hulk of the tanker Stony Point burned fiercely off this Land's End" port today, a blazing memorial to 12 seaman killed when it collided early Wednesday with the freighter Ioannis.

The Ioannis, a 9,345-ton Greek motor-freighter, limped into Brest under its own power late Wednesday night. Harbor firemen helped to quench the fires still blazing aboard.

Rescue vessels from five nations picked up 64 survivors, including 1st engineer J. Taylor and chief mechanic James Triff, both of the Stony Point. Taylor and Triff were the only Americans involved in the wreck.

The 41-man crew of the 10,500-ton tanker—a U.S. - built, Greek-owned, Italian - manned vessel of Liberian registry — abandoned ship a few minutes after the crash.

The collision was tragically reminiscent of last year's sinking of the Italian liner Andrea Doria, which ran into the Swedish liner Stockholm off the U.S. Atlantic coast.

The Stony Point was rammed amidships. Its cargo of crude oil from the Middle East splattered over the two vessels and caught fire.
